1953 QUEEN, PRINCESS ARE SELECTED

Brenda Joyce Lemaster Is Named Little Miss Pumpkin Show 1953

A 6-year-old Circleville Lass, Brenda Joyce Lemaster, Wednesday became "little princess" of the 1953 Circleville Pumpkin Show during the annual "Little Miss Pumpkin Show" contest.

The opening parade of the 47th annual Pumpkin Show was a gala affair, complete with seven bands, last years queens and their courts, and 103 potential "Miss Americas" perched on the fenders of as many gleaming automobiles.

Cheering crowds of anxious mothers, relatives, friends and onlookers lined the parade route as a bright October sun beat down upon the scene.

Tailored suits, frilly dresses and even a Pumpkin costume and a nurse's uniform were modeled by the young beauties vieing for the title of "Little Miss Pumpkin Show."

"This is going to be tough," was the comment of the judges as the parade passed their platform. "That was really tough" was the final comment as Mrs. Woody Hayes, wife of the Ohio State University football coach, Jip Houston of television fame, Johnny Jones, news columnist, and Joe Holbrook, television announcer, gave their final decision of the winners.

Reigning over the parade were last year's winners, Barbara Cerney, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. David Cerney of Pinckney St., Judy Huston, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Huston of Circleville Route 3 and Patti Barr, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Barr of Ashville Route 1.

MRS. HAYES, who also was one of last year's judges, greeted the trio by name and found places for them on the platform where they waited to greet the new champions.

The contestants were presented to the public and then to the judges in groups of ten. Twenty-nine beauties selected from the total again were presented to the judges.

By the time the file of contestants had been narrowed down to a field of eight, the going was so rough that Johnny Jones had to go back for a second look at the group just released.

Final vote was a unanimous decision of the judges in favor of Miss Lemaster, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Howard Lemaster of 901 S. Washington St.

The brown-haired beauty with sparkling eyes was sponsored by Walnut Street school, where she is a first grader. She was attired in a bright red jerkin suit complete with a white blouse, and corsage. A white tam was perched on her wavy brown hair.

Her poise and personality, as well as her beauty, led the judges in their final selection.

Attendants to the new princess are Bonnie Sue Forquer and Carol Ann Fletcher.

Bonnie Sue, a blue-eyed blonde with a dimpled smile, was sponsored by Walnut Township school. Parents of the 6-year-old charmer, dressed in a blue wool suit, are Mr. and Mrs. Don Forquer of Stoutsville Route 1.

Carol Ann Fletcher, 7-year-old daughter of Mrs. Rufus Fletcher of Weldon Ave., is a second-grader in Corwin St. School. The pig-tailed beauty with big, brown eyes was sponsored by Berger hospital Guild 22. She wore a plaid skirt with a brown sweater.

The new princess and her court will reign with the "Miss Pumpkin Show" winner during the remainder of Pumpkin Show and will be enthroned on a special float to lead the evening parades and the winners' parade on Saturday afternoon.

REIGNING AS QUEEN of Circleville's 47th annual Pumpkin Show is Miss Ruth Ann Valentine (above, center), selected winner of the "Miss Pumpkin Show of 1953" beauty contest Wednesday night. Miss Valentine, representing Stoutsville High School, was chosen for the highly-coveted title in competition with 14 other local high school beauties. Winning second place in the annual beauty contest was Jill Moats (left), "Miss Circleville"; and winning third place was Caroline Jane Kreisel (right), "Miss Kingtson."

Stoutsville Beauty Named Queen Of Show

Ruth Ann Valentine Sees Dream Come True In Test

A girl's dream came true Wednesday night for Ruth Ann Valentine of Stoutsville.

In a contest which drew a street-packing crowd to the corner of Scioto and Main Sts., the Stoutsville beauty was declared "Miss Pumpkin Show of 1953"—one of the most coveted honors of the annual festival here. Close behind Miss Valentine, who competed as "Miss Stoutsville," came petite Jill Moats who, as "Miss Circleville," took the laurels of first attendant to the queen.

Caroline Jane Kreisel — "Miss Kingston"—was judged third-place winner and second attendant.

To win the right to reign for a year as queen of the Pumpkin Show, Miss Valentine had to win the top decision over one of the most attractive assortments of beauties listed for the event in recent years. The three judges indicated their top choice was made with difficulty.

MISS VALENTINE takes over the mythical crown won last year by Mrs. Donald Davis, the former Wilma Jean Wilkinson, who had won as "Miss Circleville." To the winner of the "Miss Pumpkin Show" contest, which followed a parade honoring the 15 contestants, went a trophy. Prize for the first attendant was $10 and the third-place winner received $5.

The three judges were Ruth Edgar and Dee Lang, both of Vogue Studio of Fashion Modeling and Charm, Columbus, and Carole Hagerman, who was voted "Miss Central Ohio" in competition at Buckeye Lake this Summer.

The "Miss Pumpkin Show" contest was under the direction of Sigma Phi Gamma Sorority. Mrs. Thomas Dewey, president of the international sorority branch here, served as chairman of the committee in charge. She was assisted by

50,000 Jam Into City For Opening Day

Record Attendance Is Predicted For 47th Annual Show

A true Pumpkin Show spirit prevailed Wednesday in Circleville as an estimated 50,000 persons jammed the city's streets to take part in opening day festivities.

With the weatherman still predicting fair and warm weather, local authorities are doing a little predicting of their own.

They predict this year's Show will have attracted more people than ever before in history when the final curtain is rung down at midnight Saturday. That would mean upwards of 200,000 persons will cram themselves into this city for the four-day festival—and it's likely that will happen.

Only a sparse crowd was on hand Wednesday afternoon for the formal opening ceremonies and for the huge "Little Miss Pumpkin Show" parade.

* * *

HOWEVER, fun-seekers began pouring into the city in droves at about suppertime and kept coming in a steady flow until after the featured beauty parade.

Robert Colville, "Mr. Pumpkin Show" himself, called upon his memory Wednesday and announced the 1953 opening day crowd was the biggest he had ever seen. Last year's opening day program attracted an estimated 40,000 persons.

The late-comers Wednesday missed a real treat in overlooking the "Little Miss Pumpkin Show" parade, when a record number of 103 young beauties—resembling pretty dolls, actually—competed for the "little princess" award of the show.

The coveted title of "Little Miss" was bequeathed to Brenda Joyce Lemaster, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Howard Lemaster of 901 S. Washington St., representing Walnut St. School. Attendants selected were Carol Ann Fletcher, daughter of Mrs. Rufus Fletcher of Weldon Ave., representing Berger Guild 22; and Bonnie Sue Forquer, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Don Forquer of Stoutsville Route 1, representing Walnut Township school.

Then, in the evening, Circleville's "Queen" was selected from among 15 local high school beauties following the annual beauty parade.

Winner of the "Miss Pumpkin Show of 1953" title was Miss Ruth Ann Valentine, petite, brown-haired beauty who represented Stoutsville High School. Her attendants

GOP Candidates May Press Ike For Help In Elections

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Eisenhower is likely to face mounting pressure from Republican office holders to abandon his political umbrella approach in favor of direct activity in next year's campaign for control of Congress.

In a sharp departure from the policies of his immediate predecessors, Eisenhower told a news conference yesterday he does not intend to make the presidency an agency for use in elections.

Instead, he said he hopes to develop an enlightened and progressive program which will serve as a real umbrella under which his party's candidates can operate.

Sen. Mundt (R-SD), who is running next year, applauded the President's decision to attempt to "make a record we can brag about." Mundt added:

"I don't think that a president coming into your district to help you is any more effective than one who comes in to purge you."

* * *

MUNDT WAS alluding to the late Franklin D. Roosevelt's unsuccessful efforts in 1938 to purge some Democratic Congress members.

While none of the lawmakers here would comment publicly, there are many Republicans who don't share Mundt's view that presidential tub-thumping is no help to individual candidates.

Michigan GOP leaders have sought and thus far failed to get Eisenhower's promise to do some campaigning in their state next year in behalf of Sen. Ferguson (R-Mich), chairman of the Senate Republican Policy Committee.

Ferguson may have a tough reelection battle on his hands if Democratic Gov. G. Mennen Williams decides to run for the Senate.

Outnumbered by the Democrats 48-47, the Republicans can ill afford the loss of any Senate seats.

Eisenhower also has turned down appeals for intervention in behalf of Republican Paul J. Troast in the latter's current race for governor in New Jersey.

Eisenhower said specifically he won't lend a helping hand to Virginia Republicans who are trying to elect State Sen. Ted Dalton as governor.

GOP candidates who want to cash in on what they regard as Eisenhower's popularity are likely to keep on trying to get him actively into next year's campaign.

Sen. Cooper (R-Ky) also will be up for re-election and if he is faced by former vice president and senator Alben Barkley, as reports say, sledding may be tough for the Republican in the Bluegrass State.

Cop Testifies 7 Hours In Kidnap Probe

ST. LOUIS (AP)—Police Lt. Louis Shoulders returned to seclusion today after a seven-hour question-answer session with his superiors as the key witness in the investigation of possible irregularities in police handling of the Greenlease kidnap-slaying.

It was Shoulders who arrested Carl Austin Hall, the confessed kidnap-killer of 6-year-old Bobby Greenlease, on Oct. 6 and recovered about $293,000 in ransom cash.

It is the particulars of Hall's arrest and the handling of the ransom money that is under investigation. Half of the $600,000 ransom is unaccounted for.

Police Chief Jermiah O'Connell told newsmen the investigators may recall Shoulders for further questioning but not today.

Shoulders ducked past newsmen after testifying yesterday and rode a private elevator to the ground floor of police headquarters. His appearance came as a surprise. He had been excused through the first two days of testimony because of a nervous condition.

O'Connell declined to comment one way or another on the results of Shoulders' testimony. "I am sure we will have a statement to make when the entire investigation is completed," he said.

Mute Witnesses To Be Indicted

CANTON (AP)—Five witnesses who refused to answer neraly all questions tossed at them by the Ohio Un-American activities Commission may be indicted for contempt, the commission chairman said.

Sam Devine, the chairman, said a decision will be reached on the contempt charges when testimony taken at yesterday's hearing is reviewed two weeks from now. The five witnesses quizzed here yesterday were LaVernne Slagel, and Mrs. Eula Ann Cooper, both of Massillon, and Paul Bohus, Mrs. Rose Maldjan and Mrs. Olga Perry all of Canton.

California Election Tagged As Next Test Of Ike's Power

LOS ANGELES (AP)—Another important early test of voter reaction to the Eisenhower administration will be forthcoming Nov. 10 when a special California congressional election is held near here.

The 24th Congressional District election is attracting a nationwide attention in view of the setback the Republicans got in a similar election in Wisconsin last week.

Republicans are frankly worried and Democrats are hopeful as the campaigns in the California district buildup.

GOP Gov. Goodwin J. Knight warned in Sacramento Tuesday that there is danger the Republicans may lose as they did in Wisconsin Oct. 14 when Lester R. Johnson won in a district that had never before elected a Democrat.

That election, Knight said, was "a defeat and not an incident."

The special election in the California district was called to fill a vacancy created when Paul Poulson, a Republican, resigned from Congress to become mayor of Los Angeles. He defeated former Mayor Fletcher Brown in an election.

* * *

TWO REPUBLICANS and two Democrats are campaigning for the seat in Congress.

The 24th District is a typical big-city area. It comprises a north-central area of Los Angeles city and the city of South Pasadena. Most of the residents are average white collar and working class people. Campaign workers say only a small percentage of the district is considered "silk stocking."

The balloting in this election should provide a poll of a fairly typical group of city voters while the Wisconsin vote was a test of a predominantly rural district.

In California virtually all Republican organizations are throwing their support to Glenard P. Lipscomb, a state assemblyman and secretary of Vice President Richard Nixon's campaign last year.

Lipscomb is a Los Angeles accountant. The other Republican in the race is state legislator John L. E. Collier, a businessman.

Virtually all Democratic organizations are pulling for George L. Arnold, a young Los Angeles attorney. He is the son of Thurman Arnold, assistant attorney general under President Franklin D. Roosevelt and son-in-law of columnist Drew Pearson. The other Democrat is Irving Markheim, a veterans' service officer.

News Briefs

NEW YORK (AP)—The Center Theater, plush playhouse and part of famed Rockefeller Center, will be torn down to make way for a 19-story office building.

VIENNA, Austria (AP) — Francis Cardinal Spellman, Roman Catholic archbishop of New York, was reported "indisposed" and confined to his room in a local hotel today.

BOSTON (AP)—The Dover street bridge, a principal span connecting the south shore with downtown Boston over Fort Point Channel and New Haven Railroad tracks, was destroyed by fire today.

LOS ANGELES (AP)—Negotiations were still underway today as CIO United Auto Workers prepared to strike at midnight North American Aviation Co. plants here, in Fresno, and in Columbus, Ohio.

COLUMBUS (AP) — Congressman Walter Judd of Minnesota will be a principal speaker at a national meeting of World Neighbors here tomorrow.

SAN DIEGO, Calif. (AP)—Secretary of the Army Robert T. Stevens said today the new atomic cannon "will greatly enhance our defensive capabilities, which is why we have shipped some of them to Europe."

Harvard Prof Shares Nobel Science Prize

STORKHOLM, Sweden (AP) — A Harvard University scientist and a German - born British professor jointly won the 1953 Nobel Prize for medicine today for their discovery of fundamental life mechanisms inside human cells.

The honor went to Dr. Fritz Albert Lipmann, 54, professor of biochemistry at Harvard Medical School, Cambridge, Mass., and Dr. Hans Adolph Krebs, 53, professor of biochemistry at Britain's Sheffield University.

They will share the $33,840 prize money.

Dr. Lipmann gained the distinction through his discovery of co-enzyme "A", an organic substance that plays an important part in nearly every biological process. Dr. Krebs was cited for his "wheel of fortune" explanation of how food becomes energy in living tissue. The two developments are closely related.

Both achievements were described by Dr. Goran Liljestrand, secretary of the Medical Nobel Committee, as being "of the utmost theoretical significance and very likely to have great practical importance in understanding diseases and similar disturbances."

Dr. Lipmann isolated and identified the co-enzyme A in 1945 as a crucial factor in the process by which the body builds and renews itself out of basic factor in food. Later, he and several Harvard associates demonstrated how this substance operated.

He is married to the former Freda M. Hall of Defiance, Ohio, and has one son.

City Ordinance A Bit Too Slow

COLUMBUS (AP) — Traffic Court Judge Rodney Ross yesterday sentenced to jail four motorists convicted of driving while intoxicated even though they were "too early" for the Columbus city ordinance on drunk driving.

The Columbus ordinance goes into effect Oct. 29. Judge Ross said, "Technically, I could wait until the ordinance becomes effective before imposing jail sentences unless the affidavits were brought under the state statute." Ross said he was following the new state statute, which provides a mandatory three-day minimum jail sentence for motorists convicted of driving while intoxicated.

Educators Urged Don't Forget Kids

ATHENS (AP) — Make judgments in terms of principles not personalities, members of the Southeastern Ohio School Board Assn. were told last night.

Edward Holt, Springfield superintendent of schools, cited the need for harmony among board members and administrators.

He declared, "Children pay the price for disorganization." He called on board members to "pool your resources, define who is to do what and then proceed to do it. With our eyes glued on the welfare of our children, the cause of friction will disappear."

'Boot' Flooded

ROME (AP) — Tremendous cloudbursts swept across the toe of the Italian boot today, wrecking homes and flooding rivers. First reports said at least 48 persons were killed.

Fear Of Thursday Brings Tragedy

CLEVELAND (AP) — Blind 81-year-old Walter Ringo always hated and feared Thursday.

On Thursdays his wife went out to do housework and left him alone in their apartment. Her earnings were added to his $120 monthly pension as an ex-postal worker.

Today, after the alarm clock went off at 5:30 a. m. Ringo pleaded with his wife, Lullaby, 61, to stay with him.

"He put his arm around me and asked me not to leave," his wife said. "But I told him I had to go."

Then police said, Ringo pulled a revolver from under his pillow, shot his wife in the leg and killed himself with a bullet through his brain.

Ike Says Press Treats Him OK

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Eisenhower thinks he is getting fair and impartial treatment from the nation's reporters, White House Press Secretary James C. Hagerty said yesterday.

"By and large, the press of this country gives us very fair treatment," Hagerty said. "That's their job, and they usually do a good one."

Housewife Does Own Street-Paving

CLEVELAND (AP) — A German war bride, dissatisfied with the muddy street past her home, asked her neighbors in suburban Parma to sign a petition to have it paved.

They refused. So Mrs. Betty Thon phoned the Parma service director who had 28 tons of broken asphalt paving dumped on her front lawn.

Then, working with a hammer and her hands, she broke up the asphalt into three-inch pieces and imbedded them over a 115-foot stretch of the street. The job took her a week. She also has been landscaping her new home, tending a flower bed and vegetable garden, does her own canning, studies ballet and goes bowling. She says:

"I am somewhat surprised sometimes when American housewives tell me how little time they have for themselves."

Gambler Enters Innocent Plea

AKRON (AP)—Forrest R. Stout, arrested by Treasury Department agents, pleaded innocent yesterday when arraigned before U. S. Commissioner William J Laub for "willful failure to pay federal gambling excise tax."

Stout, 31, was freed on $1,500 bond and will have a hearing Nov. 2. Earlier he was charged in municipal court with operating a lottery. He demanded a jury trial and was freed on $2,000 bond.

Ohio Solon Given Scare In Greece

ATHENS, Greece (AP)—Rep. Frank T. Bow (R-Ohio) and at least three other U. S. officials were given a slight scare today when one engine of their Air Force C47 plane caught fire seconds after taking off from Hellenikon Airport. The pilot succeeded in landing the craft without mishap.

The two-engined plane was enroute to the quake-devastated Ianian Islands off Greece's west coast when the accident occurred. Besides Bow, the passengers included Jay Howe, a staff assistant to the House Appropriations Committee; Tom Judd, political officer of the American Embassy, and Col. William Odell, U. S. air attache. Bow has been in Greece on an investigation of the State Department's foreign building operations.

Islands Shaken

ATHENS, Greece (AP)—A series of strong earth tremors rocked the already quake-stricken islands in the Ionian Sea, in the Peloponnesus area and along Greece's west coast last night.

Impellitteri's Poll Petition Said Invalid

NEW YORK (AP)—Mayor Vincent R. Impellitteri has been ruled off the ballot for the Nov. 3 mayoral election because he failed to file enough valid signatures to his nominating petitions as an independent candidate.

Impellitteri has declined so far to say whether he will conduct a write-in campaign, the only course left to him if he continues efforts to win re-election.

State Supreme Court Justice William H. Munson ruled yesterday that the mayor's Experience Party petitions contained no more than 5,276 valid signatures among the 24,187 filed. The law requires a minimum of 7,500.

Munson's decision denied any right of appeal to a higher court, because he said he considered the petitions so defective that an appeal would be "academic."

A spokesman for the Republican mayoral candidate, former Acting Postmaster Harold Reigelman, claimed that the barring of Impellitteri would help Riegelman.

City Council President Rudolph Halley, mayoral candidate of the Liberal and Independent parties and onetime chief counsel to the Kefauver committee, contended the development would aid him.

There was no immediate comment—except that the ruling had been expected—from the camp of Manhattan Borough President Robert F. Wagner Jr., who beat Impellitteri for the Democratic nomination in the primary.

It Is Obvious He'll Stay There

CLEVELAND (AP) — Mrs. Perka Milosevic, seeking a divorce from her husband, Milance, introduced as evidence a letter he wrote from Siberia, Yugoslavia. It read:

"I have found 10,000 kilos of wheat and I have made 50 gallons of whisky, and now I am sitting and drinking whisky, the phonograph is playing, and I am enjoying this with the children and I am very happy. I am working all the time, just like a Serbian gypsy."

The divorce was granted.

To win the right to reign for a year as queen of the Pumpkin Show, Miss Valentine had to win the top decision over one of the most attractive assortments of beauties listed for the event in recent years. The three judges indicated their top choice was made with difficulty.

MISS VALENTINE takes over the mythical crown won last year by Mrs. Donald Davis, the former Wilma Jean Wilkinson, who had won as "Miss Circleville." To the winner of the "Miss Pumpkin Show" contest, which followed a parade honoring the 15 contestants, went a trophy. Prize for the first attendant was $10 and the third-place winner received $5.

The three judges were Ruth Edgar and Dee Lang, both of Vogue Studio of Fashion Modeling and Charm, Columbus, and Carole Hageman, who was voted "Miss Central Ohio" in competition at Buckeye Lake this Summer.

The "Miss Pumpkin Show" contest was under the direction of Sigma Phi Gamma Sorority. Mrs. Thomas Dewey, president of the international sorority branch here, served as chairman of the committee in charge. She was assisted by

GOP Candidates May Press Ike For Help In Elections

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Eisenhower is likely to face mounting pressure from Republican office holders to abandon his political umbrella approach in favor of direct activity in next year's campaign for control of Congress.

In a sharp departure from the policies of his immediate predecessors, Eisenhower told a news conference yesterday he does not intend to make the presidency an agency for use in elections.

Instead, he said he hopes to develop an enlightened and progressive program which will serve as a real umbrella under which his party's candidates can operate.

Sen. Mundt (R-SD), who is running next year, applauded the President's decision to attempt to "make a record we can brag about." Mundt added:

"I don't think that a president coming into your district to help you is any more effective than one who comes in to purge you."

• • •

MUNDT WAS alluding to the late Franklin D. Roosevelt's unsuccessful efforts in 1938 to purge some Democratic Congress members.

While none of the lawmakers here would comment publicly, there are many Republicans who don't share Mundt's view that presidential tub-thumping is no help to individual candidates.

Michigan GOP leaders have sought and thus far failed to get Eisenhower's promise to do some campaigning in their state next year in behalf of Sen. Ferguson (R-Mich), chairman of the Senate Republican Policy Committee.

Ferguson may have a tough reelection battle on his hands if Democratic Gov. G. Mennen Williams decides to run for the Senate.

Outnumbered by the Democrats 48-47, the Republicans can ill afford the loss of any Senate seats.

Eisenhower also has turned down appeals for intervention in behalf of Republican Paul J. Troast in the latter's current race for governor in New Jersey.

Eisenhower said specifically he won't lend a helping hand to Virginia Republicans who are trying to elect State Sen. Ted Dalton as governor.

GOP candidates who want to cash in on what they regard as Eisenhower's popularity are likely to keep on trying to get him actively into next year's campaign.

Sen. Cooper (R-Ky) also will be up for re-election and if he is faced by former vice president and senator Alben Barkley, as reports say, sledding may be tough for the Republican in the Bluegrass State.

California Election Tagged As Next Test Of Ike's Power

LOS ANGELES (AP)—Another important early test of voter reaction to the Eisenhower administration will be forthcoming Nov. 10 when a special California congressional election is held near here.

The 24th Congressional District election is attracting a nationwide attention in view of the setback the Republicans got in a similar election in Wisconsin last week.

Republicans are frankly worried and Democrats are hopeful as the campaigns in the California district buildup.

GOP Gov. Goodwin J. Knight warned in Sacramento Tuesday that there is danger the Republicans may lose as they did in Wisconsin Oct. 14 when Lester R. Johnson won in a district that had never before elected a Democrat.

That election, Knight said, was "a defeat and not an incident."

The special election in the California district was called to fill a vacancy created when Paul Poulson, a Republican, resigned from Congress to become mayor of Los Angeles. He defeated former Mayor Fletcher Brown in an election.

TWO REPUBLICANS and two Democrats are campaigning for the seat in Congress.

The 24th District is a typical big-city area. It comprises a north-central area of Los Angeles city and the city of South Pasadena. Most of the residents are average white collar and working class people. Campaign workers say only a small percentage of the district is considered "silk stocking."

The balloting in this election should provide a poll of a fairly typical group of city voters while the Wisconsin vote was a test of a predominantly rural district.

In California virtually all Republican organizations are throwing their support to Glenard P. Lipscomb, a state assemblyman and secretary of Vice President Richard Nixon's campaign last year.

Lipscomb is a Los Angeles accountant. The other Republican in the race is state legislator John L. E. Collier, a businessman.

Virtually all Democratic organizations are pulling for George L. Arnold, a young Los Angeles attorney. He is the son of Thurman Arnold, assistant attorney general under President Franklin D. Roosevelt and son-in-law of columnist Drew Pearson. The other Democrat is Irving Markheim, a veterans' service officer.

50,000 Jam Into City For Opening Day

Record Attendance Is Predicted For 47th Annual Show

A true Pumpkin Show spirit prevailed Wednesday in Circleville as an estimated 50,000 persons jammed the city's streets to take part in opening day festivities.

With the weatherman still predicting fair and warm weather, local authorities are doing a little predicting of their own.

They predict this year's Show will have attracted more people than ever before in history when the final curtain is rung down at midnight Saturday. That would mean upwards of 200,000 persons will cram themselves into this city for the four-day festival—and it's likely that will happen.

Only a sparse crowd was on hand Wednesday afternoon for the formal opening ceremonies and for the huge "Little Miss Pumpkin Show" parade.

HOWEVER, fun-seekers began pouring into the city in droves at about suppertime and kept coming in a steady flow until after the featured beauty parade.

Robert Colville, "Mr. Pumpkin Show" himself, called upon his memory Wednesday and announced the 1953 opening day crowd was the biggest he had ever seen. Last year's opening day program attracted an estimated 40,000 persons.

The late-comers Wednesday missed a real treat in overlooking the "Little Miss Pumpkin Show" parade, when a record number of 103 young beauties—resembling pretty dolls, actually—competed for the "little princess" award of the show.

The coveted title of "Little Miss" was bequeathed to Brenda Joyce Lemaster, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Howard Lemaster of 901 S. Washington St., representing Walnut St. School. Attendants selected were Carol Ann Fletcher, daughter of Mrs. Rufus Fletcher of Weldon Ave., representing Berger Guild 22; and Bonnie Sue Forquer, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Don Forquer of Stoutsville Route 1, representing Walnut Township school.

Then, in the evening, Circleville's "Queen" was selected from among 15 local high school beauties following the annual beauty parade.

Winner of the "Miss Pumpkin Show of 1953" title was Miss Ruth Ann Valentine, petite, brown-haired beauty who represented Stoutsville High School. Her attendants

News Briefs

NEW YORK (AP)—The Center Theater, plush playhouse and part of famed Rockefeller Center, will be torn down to make way for a 19-story office building.

VIENNA, Austria (AP) — Francis Cardinal Spellman, Roman Catholic archbishop of New York, was reported "indisposed" and confined to his room in a local hotel today.

BOSTON (AP)—The Dover street bridge, a principal span connecting the south shore with downtown Boston over Fort Point Channel and New Haven Railroad tracks, was destroyed by fire today.

LOS ANGELES (AP)—Negotiations were still underway today as CIO United Auto Workers prepared to strike at midnight North American Aviation Co. plants here, in Fresno, and in Columbus, Ohio.

COLUMBUS (AP) — Congressman Walter Judd of Minnesota will be a principal speaker at a national meeting of World Neighbors here tomorrow.

SAN DIEGO, Calif. (AP)—Secretary of the Army Robert T. Stevens said today the new atomic cannon "will greatly enhance our defensive capabilities, which is why we have shipped some of them to Europe."

Impellitteri's Poll Petition Said Invalid

NEW YORK (AP)—Mayor Vincent R. Impellitteri has been ruled off the ballot for the Nov. 3 mayoral election because he failed to file enough valid signatures to his nominating petitions as an independent candidate.

Impellitteri has declined so far to say whether he will conduct a write-in campaign, the only course left to him if he continues efforts to win re-election.

State Supreme Court Justice William H. Munson ruled yesterday that the mayor's Experience Party petitions contained no more than 5,276 valid signatures among the 24,187 filed. The law requires a minimum of 7,500.

Munson's decision denied any right of appeal to a higher court, because he said he considered the petitions so defective that an appeal would be "academic."

A spokesman for the Republican mayoral candidate, former Acting Postmaster Harold Reigelman, claimed that the barring of Impellitteri would help Riegelman.

City Council President Rudolph Halley, mayoral candidate of the Liberal and Independent parties and onetime chief counsel to the Kefauver committee, contended the development would aid him.

There was no immediate comment—except that the ruling had been expected—from the camp of Manhattan Borough President Robert F. Wagner Jr., who beat Impellitteri for the Democratic nomination in the primary.

Harvard Prof Shares Nobel Science Prize

STOCKHOLM, Sweden (AP) — A Harvard University scientist and a German - born British professor jointly won the 1953 Nobel Prize for medicine today for their discovery of fundamental life mechanisms inside human cells.

The honor went to Dr. Fritz Albert Lipmann, 54, professor of biochemistry at Harvard Medical School, Cambridge, Mass., and Dr. Hans Adolph Krebs, 53, professor of biochemistry at Britain's Sheffield University.

They will share the $33,840 prize money.

Dr. Lipmann gained the distinction through his discovery of co-enzyme "A", an organic substance that plays an important part in nearly every biological process. Dr. Krebs was cited for his "wheel of fortune" explanation of how food becomes energy in living tissue. The two developments are closely related.

Both achievements were described by Dr. Goran Liljestrand, secretary of the Medical Nobel Committee, as being "of the utmost theoretical significance and very likely to have great practical importance in understanding diseases and similar disturbances."

Dr. Lipmann isolated and identified the co-enzyme A in 1945 as a crucial factor in the process by which the body builds and renews itself out of basic factor in food. Later, he and several Harvard associates demonstrated how this substance operated.

He is married to the former Freda M. Hall of Defiance, Ohio, and has one son.

City Ordinance A Bit Too Slow

COLUMBUS (AP) — Traffic Court Judge Rodney Ross yesterday sentenced to jail four motorists convicted of driving while intoxicated even though they were "too early" for the Columbus city ordinance on drunk driving.

The Columbus ordinance goes into effect Oct. 29. Judge Ross said, "Technically, I could wait until the ordinance becomes effective before imposing jail sentences unless the affidavits were brought under the state statute." Ross said he was following the new state statute, which provides a mandatory three-day minimum jail sentence for motorists convicted of driving while intoxicated.

Educators Urged Don't Forget Kids

ATHENS (AP) — Make judgments in terms of principles not personalities, members of the Southeastern Ohio School Board Assn. were told today.

Edward Holt, Springfield superintendent of schools, cited the need for harmony among board members and administrators.

He declared, "Children pay the price for disorganization." He called on board members to "pool your resources, define who is to do what and then proceed to do it. With our eyes glued on the welfare of our children, the cause of friction will disappear."

'Boot' Flooded

ROME (AP) — Tremendous cloudbursts swept across the toe of the Italian boot today, wrecking homes and flooding rivers. First reports said at least 48 persons were killed.

Fear Of Thursday Brings Tragedy

CLEVELAND (AP) — Blind 81-year-old Walter Ringo always hated and feared Thursday.

On Thursdays his wife went out to do housework and left him alone in their apartment. Her earnings were added to his $120 monthly pension as an ex-postal worker.

Today, after the alarm clock went off at 5:30 a. m. Ringo pleaded with his wife, Lullaby, 61, to stay with him.

"He put his arm around me and asked me not to leave," his wife said. "But I told him I had to go."

Then police said, Ringo pulled a revolver from under his pillow, shot his wife in the leg and killed himself with a bullet through his brain.

Ike Says Press Treats Him OK

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Eisenhower thinks he is getting fair and impartial treatment from the nation's reporters, White House Press Secretary James C. Hagerty said yesterday.

"By and large, the press of this country gives us very fair treatment," Hagerty said. "That's their job, and they usually do a good one of it."

Cop Testifies 7 Hours In Kidnap Probe

ST. LOUIS (AP)—Police Lt. Louis Shoulders returned to seclusion today after a seven-hour question-answer session with his superiors as the key witness in the investigation of possible irregularities in police handling of the Greenlease kidnap-slaying.

It was Shoulders who arrested Carl Austin Hall, the confessed kidnap-killer of 6-year-old Bobby Greenlease, on Oct. 6 and recovered about $293,000 in ransom cash.

It is the particulars of Hall's arrest and the handling of the ransom money that is under investigation. Half of the $600,000 ransom is unaccounted for.

Police Chief Jermiah O'Connell told newsmen the investigators may recall Shoulders for further questioning but not today.

Shoulders ducked past newsmen after testifying yesterday and rode a private elevator to the ground floor of police headquarters. His appearance came as a surprise. He had been excused through the first two days of testimony because of a nervous condition.

O'Connell declined to comment one way or another on the results of Shoulders' testimony. "I am sure we will have a statement to make when the entire investigation is completed," he said.

Mute Witnesses To Be Indicted

CANTON (AP)—Five witnesses who refused to answer neraly all questions tossed at them by the Ohio Un-American activities Commission may be indicted for contempt, the commission chairman said.

Sam Devine, the chairman, said a decision will be reached on the contempt charges when testimony taken at yesterday's hearing is reviewed two weeks from now. The five witnesses quizzed here yesterday were LaVerne Slagel, and Mrs. Eula Ann Cooper, both of Massillon, and Paul Bohus, Mrs. Rose Maldjan and Mrs. Olga Perry all of Canton.

Housewife Does Own Street-Paving

CLEVELAND (AP) — A German war bride, dissatisfied with the muddy street past her home, asked her neighbors in suburban Parma to sign a petition to have it paved.

They refused. So Mrs. Betty Thon phoned the Parma service director who had 28 tons of broken asphalt paving dumped on her front lawn.

Then, working with a hammer and her hands, she broke up the asphalt into three-inch pieces and imbedded them over a 115-foot stretch of the street. The job took her a week. She also has been landscaping her new home, tending a flower bed and vegetable garden, does her own canning, studies ballet and goes bowling. She says:

"I am somewhat surprised sometimes when American housewives tell me how little time they have for themselves."

Gambler Enters Innocent Plea

AKRON (AP)—Forrest R. Stout, arrested by Treasury Department agents, pleaded innocent yesterday when arraigned before U. S. Commissioner William J Laub for "willful failure to pay federal gambling excise tax."

Stout, 31, was freed on $1,500 bond and will have a hearing Nov. 2. Earlier he was charged in municipal court with operating a lottery. He demanded a jury trial and was freed on $2,000 bond.

Ohio Solon Given Scare In Greece

ATHENS, Greece (AP)—Rep. Frank T. Bow (R-Ohio) and at least three other U. S. officials were given a slight scare today when one engine of their Air Force C47 plane caught fire seconds after taking off from Hellenikon Airport. The pilot succeeded in landing the craft without mishap.

The two-engined plane was enroute to the quake-devastated Ionian Islands off Greece's west coast when the accident occurred. Besides Bow, the passengers included Jay Howe, a staff assistant to the House Appropriations Committee; Tom Judd, political officer of the American Embassy, and Col. William Odell, U. S. air attache. Bow has been in Greece on an investigation of the State Department's foreign building operations.

Islands Shaken

ATHENS, Greece (AP) — A series of strong earth tremors rocked the already quake-stricken islands in the Ionian Sea, in the Peloponnesus area and along Greece's west coast last night.

It Is Obvious He'll Stay There

CLEVELAND (AP) — Mrs. Perka Milosevic, seeking a divorce from her husband, Milance, introduced as evidence a letter he wrote from Siberia, Yugoslavia. It read:

"I have found 10,000 kilos of wheat and I have made 50 gallons of whisky, and now I am sitting and drinking whisky, the phonograph is playing, and I am enjoying this place with the children and I am very happy. I am working all the time, just like a Serbian gypsy."

The divorce was granted.

THE HUGE crowd of visitors in the evening also were privileged to see the various floats in parade before anything could soil or spoil them. The floats were judged for awards Wednesday night, but the winners will not be announced until Saturday afternoon.

Other top prizes during the opening day went to Mrs. Paul Teegardin of near Ashville and Mrs. Harley Lutz of Kingston Route 1, first daily "bake-a-pie" champions.

In the baked goods department, Mrs. Lee Smith of South Washington St. won the grand champion cake award with a white layer cake, and Miss Adalaide Wertman of E. Franklin St., a Circleville High School graduate last year, won the award for champion cake with her pumpkin cake.

Visitors also were treated to free acts, free exhibits and an ample supply of reasonably-priced pumpkin pie and other pumpkin concoctions.

But that is past history. What lies in store for fun-seeking crowds is most important now.

Thursday's big features were to have opened with an ever-popular pet parade in the afternoon; judging in the beard-growing contest at Scioto and Main at 7 p. m.; and a large sesquicentennial parade at 8 p. m.

* * *

FOR FRIDAY, Show-goers will be treated to the baby parade at 2 p. m.; announcement and introduction of winners in the beard-growing contest at 7 p. m.; a huge merchants' and industrial parade at 8 p. m.; and, for the athletically inclined, a Circleville-Miamisburg football game also at 8 p. m. on the high school field here.

Saturday's climactic show offers only one big parade—the winners' parade at 2 p. m. when previous winners are honored and the winners of the annual float contest are announced.

After that parade, Show-goers are on their own to relax and enjoy the final few hours of this year's huge festival.

Circleville Motorist Fined Total Of $25

A Circleville motorist was fined a total of $25 and costs Wednesday in the court of Magistrate Oscar Root.

The driver, Louis Edgar Clifton Jr., 18, of 225 E. Ohio St., was fined $15 and costs for crossing the yellow line and $10 and costs for speeding at 70.

Deputy Sheriff Carl White made the arrest on Route 23 north of the city.

Social Security Hike Said Needed

WASHINGTON (AP)—Rep. Curtis (R-Neb) said today a scheduled 33 per cent increase in social security taxes seems necessary to carry on the vast program of death and retirement benefits.

Curtis is chairman of a special social security subcommittee of the House Ways and Means Committee. He plans hearings next month as part of a broad investigation of the present social security system.

His comment puts him at odds with Rep. Richard M. Simpson (R-Pa), another influential member of the tax-writing Ways and Means Committee, who said it would be wise to freeze social security taxes at their present levels.

Simpson noted that for many persons in low income groups the scheduled social security tax increase would more than offset a 10 per cent reduction in personal income taxes also set for Jan. 1.

President Eisenhower asked the 1953 session of Congress to cancel the scheduled social security tax boost. The lawmakers took no action on this and the administration did not push the request.

Under present laws, the social security tax jumps automatically on Jan. 1 from 3 per cent to 4 per cent of a person's salary, up to $3,600 a year. Half of the tax is paid by the employe and half by the employer, so the individual rate would go up from 1 1/2 to 2 per cent year.

The total increase could amount to roughly $1 billion next year.

Curtis said:

"My own personal feeling is that the increase will have to go into effect. I think it is necessary to carry on the program."

Simpson's call for a freeze on the tax could be a forecast that the administration will revive its request next year. The tax could be lowered back to 1 1/2 per cent on individuals even after it jumped automatically.

Addressing an Ohio Chamber of Commerce convention in Columbus today, Curtis said it might be a good idea for private industry to handle all social security.

"Possibly," he said, "the solution to the program is a system whereby private concerns handle the entire program. This would include private investment of funds paid in for social security but these investments would be guaranteed by the government in much the same manner as bank deposits are guaranteed by the Federal Deposit Insurance Corp.

Two City Clubs Give Approval Of Annexation

In the midst of a bigger and better Pumpkin Show, two local organizations have taken time to approve plans for a bigger and better Circleville.

Circleville's Parent - Teacher Association and the Newcomer's Club both have endorsed the proposal to annex lands to the north of the city limits for building expansion purposes.

The PTA reported: The Circleville Parents and Teachers Association wishes the Editor of the Herald and the citizens of Circleville to know that they fully approve the annexation of land, from Circleville Township, which has been proposed by the Circleville Planning Commission.

* * *

APPROVAL by the Newcomer's Club was expressed as follows:

Under the constitution of the Newcomer's Club of Circleville, we are not a civic organization and are not permitted to enter into controversial matters; however, we did take a vote during our business meeting and a majority of the members are in favor of annexation.

If the fact that as individuals we are in favor of the proposed program helps the proposal, we are happy to be of help.

Kearns Is Hurt In Auto Crash

Galen Kearns of 357 E. Ohio St. was injured late Wednesday in an auto crash on Route 22 one mile west of Circleville.

State Patrolman M. E. Brickles said Kearns apparently was travelling east toward Circleville when he lost control of his auto on a curve. The car smashed into a cement post and was virtually demolished.

Kearns was treated in Berger hospital for fractured ribs. He has been cited to answer an accusation of reckless operation.

Red Members End Boycott In Korea

But There's No Hint Commies Win Point On Talks To POWs

PANMUNJOM (AP)—The two Red satellite members of the Korean Neutral Nations Repatriation Commission ended a three-day walkout today but there was no indication they had won their point that anti-Red Koreans be forced to hear Communists efforts to wheedle them home.

The explanations have been stalled since Monday when the Polish and Czech delegates left the commission after being voted down by the Indians, Swedes and Swiss.

In today's meeting they apparently repeated the demand without success and the explanations remained at a standstill.

The Communist delegates are forcing the point by disregarding the 14,600 Chinese who apparently will listen, insisting instead on talking with the 7,800 Koreans who refused with a show of defiance.

The Red reluctance to meet the Chinese may grow from the stinging propaganda beating they took in the first two days of interviews when only 19 of 921 Chinese chose the road to communism.

* * *

AFTER UNSUCCESSFUL efforts by Indian guards to get the Koreans peacefully to the interviews the Red efforts were called off in stalemate.

Lt. Gen. K. S. Thimayya, Indian chairman of the repatriation commission, said after Thursday's session that Indian troops are unable to produce the Koreans "at this time."

However, the 2-hour, 25-minute meeting was not adjourned but recessed until Friday, leading observers to speculate that some new line of argument may have been presented.

Before the meeting Thimayya said he would ask for an indefinite recess, but he declined comment on that point after the session.

The days without interviews are chopping time from the explanation period set by the armistice, which is to end Dec. 23 by Allied interpretation and Dec. 24 by the Indian view.

THE HUGE crowd of visitors in the evening also were privileged to see the various floats in parade before anything could soil or spoil them. The floats were judged for awards Wednesday night, but the winners will not be announced until Saturday afternoon.

Other top prizes during the opening day went to Mrs. Paul Teegardin of near Ashville and Mrs. Harley Lutz of Kingston Route 1, first daily "bake-a-pie" champions.

In the baked goods department, Mrs. Lee Smith of South Washington St. won the grand champion cake award with a white layer cake, and Miss Adalaide Wertman of E. Franklin St., a Circleville High School graduate last year, won the award for champion cake with her pumpkin cake.

Visitors also were treated to free acts, free exhibits and an ample supply of reasonably-priced pumpkin pie and other pumpkin concoctions.

But that is past history. What lies in store for fun-seeking crowds is most important now.

Thursday's big features were to have opened with an ever-popular pet parade in the afternoon; judging in the beard-growing contest at Scioto and Main at 7 p. m.; and a large sesquicentennial parade at 8 p. m.

* * *

FOR FRIDAY, Show-goers will be treated to the baby parade at 2 p. m.; announcement and introduction of winners in the beard-growing contest at 7 p. m.; a huge merchants' and industrial parade at 8 p. m.; and, for the athletically inclined, a Circleville-Miamisburg football game also at 8 p. m. on the high school field here.

Saturday's climactic show offers only one big parade—the winners' parade at 2 p. m. when previous winners are honored and the winners of the annual float contest are announced.

After that parade, Show-goers are on their own to relax and enjoy the final few hours of this year's huge festival.

Circleville Motorist Fined Total Of $25

A Circleville motorist was fined a total of $25 and costs Wednesday in the court of Magistrate Oscar Root.

The driver, Louis Edgar Clifton Jr., 18, of 225 E. Ohio St., was fined $15 and costs for crossing the yellow line and $10 and costs for speeding at 70.

Deputy Sheriff Carl White made the arrest on Route 23 north of the city.

MARKETS

GRAIN FUTURES

CHICAGO (AP) — All grains turned lower in fairly active dealings on the Board of Trade today.

Wheat decline might have been larger than it was, grain men said, if it had not been for the fact the market drew support from mills.

Wheat near noon was 3/8-3/4 lower, December $1.94, corn 1/2-1 1/8 lower, December $1.48, oats -1/4 5/8 lower, December 77 1/8, soybeans 1 1/8 - 1 7/8 LOWER November $2.70 1/4, and lard 15 cents lower to 12 cents a hundred pounds higher, November $14.77.

DEATHS AND FUNERALS

MRS. P. C. VANCLEVE

Mrs. Pearl W. VanCleve of London, wife of P. C. VanCleve, died at 7:30 p. m. Wednesday in her home following a heart attack.

Surviving her is her husband; three sons, Arthur and Maxwell, both of Columbus, and Warrick of Amanda; a sister, Mrs. Edna Kyle; and four grandchildren.

Funeral services will be held at 2 p. m. Saturday in Big Plains Methodist church, near London. Burial will be in West Jefferson cemetery.

Friends may call in the residence.

FIRST DAILY merchandise award winner in the annual "bake-a-pumpkin-pie" contest held in conjunction with Circleville's 1953 Pumpkin Show is Mrs. Paul Teegardin (above) of near Ashville, shown receiving the Fryrite daily first prize award from H. A. Lampton, representing Wesson Oil, co-sponsor of the contest. Winner of the daily cash award Wednesday was Mrs. Harley Lutz of Kingston Route 1. Both Mrs. Teegardin and Mrs. Lutz will compete with six other daily winners Saturday for the "grand champion" pie-baking laurels.

Social Security Hike Said Needed

WASHINGTON (AP)—Rep. Curtis (R-Neb) said today a scheduled 33 per cent increase in social security taxes seems necessary to carry on the vast program of death and retirement benefits.

Curtis is chairman of a special social security subcommittee of the House Ways and Means Committee. He plans hearings next month as part of a broad investigation of the present social security system.

His comment puts him at odds with Rep. Richard M. Simpson (R-Pa), another influential member of the tax-writing Ways and Means Committee, who said it would be wise to freeze social security taxes at their present levels.

Simpson noted that for many persons in low income groups the scheduled social security tax increase would more than offset a 10 per cent reduction in personal income taxes also set for Jan. 1.

President Eisenhower asked the 1953 session of Congress to cancel the scheduled social security tax boost. The lawmakers took no action on this and the administration also did not push the request.

Under present laws, the social security tax jumps automatically on Jan. 1 from 3 per cent to 4 per cent of a person's salary, up to $3,600 a year. Half of the tax is paid by the employe and half by the employer, so the individual rate would go up from 1 1/2 to 2 per cent year.

The total increase could amount to roughly $1 billion next year.

Curtis said:

"My own personal feeling is that the increase will have to go into effect. I think it is necessary to carry on the program."

Simpson's call for a freeze on the tax could be a forecast that the administration will revive its request next year. The tax could be lowered back to 1 1/2 per cent on individuals even after it jumped automatically.

Addressing an Ohio Chamber of Commerce convention in Columbus today, Curtis said it might be a good idea for private industry to handle all social security.

"Possibly," he said, "the solution to the program is a system whereby private concerns handle the entire program. This would include private investment of funds paid in for social security but these investments would be guaranteed by the government in much the same manner as bank deposits are guaranteed by the Federal Deposit Insurance Corp.

Two City Clubs Give Approval Of Annexation

In the midst of a bigger and better Pumpkin Show, two local organizations have taken time to approve plans for a bigger and better Circleville.

Circleville's Parent - Teacher Association and the Newcomer's Club both have endorsed the proposal to annex lands to the north of the city limits for building expansion purposes.

The PTA reported: The Circleville Parents and Teachers Association wishes the Editor of the Herald and the citizens of Circleville to know that they fully approve the annexation of land, from Circleville Township, which has been proposed by the Circleville Planning Commission.

* * *

APPROVAL by the Newcomer's Club was expressed as follows:

Under the constitution of the Newcomer's Club of Circleville, we are not a civic organization and are not permitted to enter into controversial matters; however, we did take a vote during our business meeting and a majority of the members are in favor of annexation.

If the fact that as individuals we are in favor of the proposed program helps the proposal, we are happy to be of help.

Kearns Is Hurt In Auto Crash

Galen Kearns of 357 E. Ohio St. was injured late Wednesday in an auto crash on Route 22 one mile west of Circleville.

State Patrolman M. E. Brickles said Kearns apparently was travelling east toward Circleville when he lost control of his auto on a curve. The car smashed into a cement post and was virtually demolished.

Kearns was treated in Berger hospital for fractured ribs. He has been cited to answer an accusation of reckless operation.

Red Members End Boycott In Korea

But There's No Hint Commies Win Point On Talks To POWs

PANMUNJOM (AP)—The two Red satellite members of the Korean Neutral Nations Repatriation Commission ended a three-day walkout today but there was no indication they had won their point that anti-Red Koreans be forced to hear Communists efforts to wheedle them home.

The explanations have been stalled since Monday when the Polish and Czech delegates left the commission after being voted down by the Indians, Swedes and Swiss.

In today's meeting they apparently repeated the demand without success and the explanations remained at a standstill.

The Communist delegates are forcing the point by disregarding the 14,600 Chinese who apparently will listen, insisting instead on talking with the 7,800 Koreans who refused with a show of defiance.

The Red reluctance to meet the Chinese may grow from the stinging propaganda beating they took in the first two days of interviews when only 19 of 921 Chinese chose the road to communism.

AFTER UNSUCCESSFUL efforts by Indian guards to get the Koreans peacefully to the interviews the Red efforts were called off in stalemate.

Lt. Gen. K. S. Thimayya, Indian chairman of the repatriation commission, said after Thursday's session that Indian troops are unable to produce the Koreans "at this time."

However, the 2-hour, 25-minute meeting was not adjourned but recessed until Friday, leading observers to speculate that some new line of argument may have been presented.

Before the meeting Thimayya said he would ask for an indefinite recess, but he declined comment on that point after the session.

The days without interviews are chopping time from the explanation period set by the armistice, which is to end Dec. 23 by Allied interpretation and Dec. 24 by the Indian view.

Raffles And Pools Reach Peak As Birds Wheel South In Fall

By HAL BOYLE

NEW YORK (AP)—Wives: About this time of year does that favorite brute in your life begin to turn pale, thin and languid?

Does your husband bolt his supper as if he hadn't seen food since breakfast, and then look absentminded the rest of the evening, or make mysterious remarks such as, "A guy simply has to win sometime?" '

Well, ladies, don't get too worried. Check and see if he tosses in his sleep and mutters:

"Why did I have to pick Adeline? What good is No. 38? Should I ride with Michigan State or Michigan?"

Then, even if your name is Esmeralda, don't get jealous and jump to the conclusion he is hotfooting it after some gal called Adeline. And don't start buying him bloodbuilding tonics or encouraging him to visit a psychiatrist.

All his symptoms indicate he merely is suffering from a seasonal form of malnutrition, common in office and factory. Instead of spending his lunch money on food he is investing it in betting on a football pool or buying chances on some kind of a raffle.

These raffles and pools go on all year round in offices and factories, but somehow they seem to reach a peak when the birds wheel south in autumn. The heady urge to take a big chance on a mild gamble overcomes everybody from straw boss to bookkeeper to office boy.

As a matter of fact, these particular three individuals have to buy at least one chance as they are probably running the raffle.

"My wealthy grandfather gave me this $250 wrist watch for my high school graduation," says the office boy, "and my hope of getting through law school depends upon my success in selling 3,000 chances at $1 each."

Well, of course he only buys one ticket himself, but somehow he wins three years in a row.

One year a friend of mine won the watch and when he took it to a jeweler, the man replied when he questioned a $25 repair bill:

"The only honest thing about watch is the crystal. It shows the wrong time clearly."

Now about Adeline. The bookkeeper's pitch was this:

"My late wife left me this glorious diamond ring which naturally belongs on the finger of your wife. I paid $465 wholesale for it 30 years ago.

"As a sporting gesture I am offering you a chance to grab it for $1. There are only 1,500 chances, on this punch board, which is based on girls' names. I know your own wife's name is Esmeralda, but how are you going to print a name like that on a punch board?

"So your grandmother's rame was Dorothy? Dorothy is gone. How about taking Adeline?" So you plunk a buck on Adeline.

Let us leave out what happens to the diamond ring, or the bookkeeper's raffle profit. Why do you think he is a bookkeeper? And what do you think that old-fashioned diamond is really worth?

The real lure is that $1 a week the straw boss gets your old man to gamble out of his lunch money on whom the sports tycoons will pick as the national football team of the year, Notre Dame or Michigan State, and they don't play each other this season.

Oh, well, here we go. I picked the Dodgers in six games, and all the Yankees won in six was the World Series and all I lost was my reputation.

But I still say, dear wife, if your husband is peaked and undernourished send him to work with a sandwich, and let him put his office lunch money on Notre Dame. Michigan State can't go on winning forever, or can it?

Fall Proves Fatal

SPRINGFIELD (AP)—Deputy Sheriff Walter Gregg said Millard Hurd Jr., 28, was killed last night when he fell from a tree.

Susan Hayward Divorce Fought

HOLLYWOOD (AP)—Actress Susan Hayward's husband, Jess Barker, will contest her divorce suit by petitioning for a hearing in the Children's Reconciliation Court. The couple has twin sons, aged 8.

S. S. Hahn, representing Barker, said he would ask today that a date be set for the hearing.

"In my extensive interview with Barker on the circumstances of the separation almost a year ago, I have found nothing that would preclude a reconciliation," said Hahn. "The most important issue is the children. They need both parents."

Hahn said that his petition for a hearing in the children's court, once granted, would delay the divorce action for at least two months.

Raffles And Pools Reach Peak As Birds Wheel South In Fall

By HAL BOYLE

NEW YORK (AP)—Wives: About this time of year does that favorite brute in your life begin to turn pale, thin and languid?

Does your husband bolt his supper as if he hadn't seen food since breakfast, and then look absentminded the rest of the evening, or make mysterious remarks such as, "A guy simply has to win sometime?" '

Well, ladies, don't get too worried. Check and see if he tosses in his sleep and mutters:

"Why did I have to pick Adeline? What good is No. 38? Should I ride with Michigan State or Michigan?"

Then, even if your name is Esmeralda, don't get jealous and jump to the conclusion he is hotfooting it after some gal called Adeline. And don't start buying him bloodbuilding tonics or encouraging him to visit a psychiatrist.

All his symptoms indicate he merely is suffering from a seasonal form of malnutrition, common in office and factory. Instead of spending his lunch money on food he is investing it in betting on a football pool or buying chances on some kind of a raffle.

These raffles and pools go on all year round in offices and factories, but somehow they seem to reach a peak when the birds wheel south in autumn. The heady urge to take a big chance on a mild gamble overcomes everybody from straw boss to bookkeeper to office boy.

As a matter of fact, these particular three individuals have to buy at least one chance as they are probably running the raffle.

"My wealthy grandfather gave me this $250 wrist watch for my high school graduation," says the office boy, "and my hope of getting through law school depends upon my success in selling 3,000 chances at $1 each."

Well, of course he only buys one ticket himself, but somehow he wins three years in a row.

One year a friend of mine won the watch and when he took it to a jeweler, the man replied when he questioned a $25 repair bill:

"The only honest thing about watch is the crystal. It shows the wrong time clearly."

Now about Adeline. The bookkeeper's pitch was this:

"My late wife left me this glorious diamond ring which naturally belongs on the finger of your wife. I paid $465 wholesale for it 30 years ago.

"As a sporting gesture I am offering you a chance to grab it for $1. There are only 1,500 chances, on this punch board, which is based on girls' names. I know your own wife's name is Esmeralda, but how are you going to print a name like that on a punch board?

"So your grandmother's name was Dorothy? Dorothy is gone. How about taking Adeline?" So you plunk a buck on Adeline.

Let us leave out what happens to the diamond ring, or the bookkeeper's raffle profit. Why do you think he is a bookkeeper? And what do you think that old-fashioned diamond is really worth?

The real lure is that $1 a week the straw boss gets your old man to gamble out of his lunch money on whom the sports tycoons will pick as the national football team of the year, Notre Dame or Michigan State, and they don't play each other this season.

Oh, well, here we go. I picked the Dodgers in six games, and all the Yankees won in six was the World Series and all I lost was my reputation.

But I still say, dear wife, if your husband is peaked and undernourished send him to work with a sandwich, and let him put his office lunch money on Notre Dame. Michigan State can't go on winning forever, or can it?

Fall Proves Fatal

SPRINGFIELD (AP)—Deputy Sheriff Walter Gregg said Millard Hurd Jr., 28, was killed last night when he fell from a tree.

Susan Hayward Divorce Fought

HOLLYWOOD (AP)—Actress Susan Hayward's husband, Jess Barker, will contest her divorce suit by petitioning for a hearing in the Children's Reconciliation Court. The couple has twin sons, aged 8.

S. S. Hahn, representing Barker, said he would ask today that a date be set for the hearing.

"In my extensive interview with Barker on the circumstances of the separation almost a year ago, I have found nothing that would preclude a reconciliation," said Hahn. "The most important issue is the children. They need both parents."

Hahn said that his petition for a hearing in the children's court, once granted, would delay the divorce action for at least two months.

Lawmakers Misunderstood Views On Water Extension, Horn Says

Councilman Boyd Horn declared late Wednesday he was misunderstood by his fellow lawmakers in their latest meeting during a discussion on prospects of extending a city water line to Lowery Lane.

Horn said he did not ask to have water service extended to Lowery Lane, but emphasized he would recommend such action if residents of that section request it. The Fourth Ward councilman said he had two other areas in mind during the lengthy debate over city water mains.

He was advocating, he said, water service for "the old Hampp property and for the Heffner addition, over the hill from the Hampp property." Special requests had been made, he said, by residents of those two sections.

The debate over extension of city water lines was launched in last Tuesday night's meeting when Horn voted against a proposal to extend water mains at the northern edge of the city—as part of current planning and as a long-range step to aid future city expansion. The ordinance was passed over his opposition.

* * *

WHEN HORN said he wanted to explain why he opposed the measure — contending such service should be given first to sub-standard areas already in the city—the discussion almost immediately centered on Lowery Lane. Several of those present engaged Horn in a discussion for several minutes, and they were talking at that time about Lowery Lane.

Property owners in the Lowery Lane area, he was told, had refused to cooperate when the city tried in the past to give them water service. Ervin Leist, manager of the water and sewage department, and City Solicitor George Gerhardt both went into detail on the subject, confining their discussion almost entirely at that time to Lowery Lane.

Horn said he felt that, if another effort were made to obtain approval of the property owners, the necessary papers would be signed. It was finally agreed that he and Councilman John Robinson should explore new action in this direction. Horn, however, said Wednesday night he had adjoining areas—and not Lowery Lane—in mind.

After the possibility of water for Lowery Lane was discussed, the talk did turn to similar service for nearby areas, presumably the ones mentioned Wednesday night by Horn. He said he meant all his discussion to be considered only in reference to those areas.

Notified of Horn's request for clarification of his stand, Robinson said he planned to "go ahead anyway" and try to obtain city water service for Lowery Lane.

Father Of 15 Due To Get Reward

TUCSON, Ariz. (AP)—Carlos Delahanty found a bag containing $7,385 in cash which had fallen from an armored car. He returned it and was told he would receive $350 in rewards.

Delahanty, a truck driver, has to work at three other part-time jobs to support his 15 children.

Royal Limousine Goes On Blink

LONDON (AP)—A royal limousine conked out in busy Leicester Square last night with Queen Elizabeth II and her husband, the Duke of Edinburgh, inside.

They were about to return to Buckingham Palace after attending the premiere of a film of last summer's successful Mt. Everest expedition.

The starter whirred but nothing happened.

The crowd let out a good-natured cheer.

The chauffeur looked harassed.

Finally the Duke opened the door, helped the Queen out and the laughing couple entered the car of an aide for the drive to the palace.

Two strong-armed bobbies pushed the big royal car a few yards down the street and it started readily.

The chauffeur drove off amid cheers.

Butt By Ram Brings Lawsuit

HOUSTON, Tex. (AP)—Automobile dealer H. B. Sparks seeks $122,000 damages from oilman Bayard G. Gaylor, whose ram, he alleges, "butted his horns into the rear portion of your plaintiff" Aug. 17 while "racing at a high and unusual speed."

In a petition filed yesterday in Civil District Court, Sparks said he was thrown 20 feet.

Gaylor, informed of the suit, said he'd warned Sparks about the ram. He added: "I've gotten rid of it."

Grass Test Curbed

MANHATTAN, Kan. (AP)—Kansas State College experts had to give up on their experiments to find which chemicals kill crabgrass the quickest. The prolonged drought killed the crabgrass and there was none left for testing the chemicals.

Lawmakers Misunderstood Views On Water Extension, Horn Says

Councilman Boyd Horn declared late Wednesday he was misunderstood by his fellow lawmakers in their latest meeting during a discussion on prospects of extending a city water line to Lowery Lane.

Horn said he did not ask to have water service extended to Lowery Lane, but emphasized he would recommend such action if residents of that section request it. The Fourth Ward councilman said he had two other areas in mind during the lengthy debate over city water mains.

He was advocating, he said, water service for "the old Hampp property and for the Heffner addition, over the hill from the Hampp property." Special requests had been made, he said, by residents of those two sections.

The debate over extension of city water lines was launched in last Tuesday night's meeting when Horn voted against a proposal to extend water mains at the northern edge of the city—as part of current planning and as a long-range step to aid future city expansion. The ordinance was passed over his opposition.

* * *

WHEN HORN said he wanted to explain why he opposed the measure — contending such service should be given first to sub-standard areas already in the city—the discussion almost immediately centered on Lowery Lane. Several of those present engaged Horn in a discussion for several minutes, and they were talking at that time about Lowery Lane.

Property owners in the Lowery Lane area, he was told, had refused to cooperate when the city tried in the past to give them water service. Ervin Leist, manager of the water and sewage department, and City Solicitor George Gerhardt both went into detail on the subject, confining their discussion almost entirely at that time to Lowery Lane.

Horn said he felt that, if another effort were made to obtain approval of the property owners, the necessary papers would be signed. It was finally agreed that he and Councilman John Robinson should explore new action in this direction. Horn, however, said Wednesday night he had adjoining areas—and not Lowery Lane—in mind.

After the possibility of water for Lowery Lane was discussed, the talk did turn to similar service for nearby areas, presumably the ones mentioned Wednesday night by Horn. He said he meant all his discussion to be considered only in reference to those areas.

Notified of Horn's request for clarification of his stand, Robinson said he planned to "go ahead anyway" and try to obtain city water service for Lowery Lane.

Father Of 15 Due To Get Reward

TUCSON, Ariz. (AP)—Carlos Delahanty found a bag containing $7,385 in cash which had fallen from an armored car. He returned it and was told he would receive $350 in rewards.

Delahanty, a truck driver, has to work at three other part-time jobs to support his 15 children.

Royal Limousine Goes On Blink

LONDON (AP)—A royal limousine conked out in busy Leicester Square last night with Queen Elizabeth II and her husband, the Duke of Edinburgh, inside.

They were about to return to Buckingham Palace after attending the premiere of a film of last summer's successful Mt. Everest expedition.

The starter whirred but nothing happened.

The crowd let out a good-natured cheer.

The chauffeur looked harassed.

Finally the Duke opened the door, helped the Queen out and the laughing couple entered the car of an aide for the drive to the palace.

Two strong-armed bobbies pushed the big royal car a few yards down the street and it started readily.

The chauffeur drove off amid cheers.

Butt By Ram Brings Lawsuit

HOUSTON, Tex. (AP)—Automobile dealer H. B. Sparks seeks $122,000 damages from oilman Bayard G. Gaylor, whose ram, he alleges, "butted his horns into the rear portion of your plaintiff" Aug. 17 while "racing at a high and unusual speed."

In a petition filed yesterday in Civil District Court, Sparks said he was thrown 20 feet.

Gaylor, informed of the suit, said he'd warned Sparks about the ram. He added: "I've gotten rid of it."

Grass Test Curbed

MANHATTAN, Kan. (AP)—Kansas State College experts had to give up on their experiments to find which chemicals kill crabgrass the quickest. The prolonged drought killed the crabgrass and there was none left for testing the chemicals.

Fear-Mongers Of Slump Now In Minority

U.S. Businessmen Taking On Cheerful Attitude These Days

NEW YORK (AP)—The switch in business sentiment to the more cheerful side is more evident this week.

Fear of a bad slump with many jobless, profits vanishing and stores half - empty was bandied around last summer when businessmen got together. Today the fear-mongers are in the minority. The majority is now saying: "Only a mild dip which our own particular company ought to be able to master handily."

Sentiment, of course, can change again just as quickly if a business dip begins to pinch harder.

The switch in sentiment comes, strangely enough, just when the statistics are beginning to reveal that a business slipoff is underway.

An industrial production dip is beginning to show. Those selling to farmers are well aware of what the drop in farm income is doing. Retail sales in general haven't risen as sharply this fall as in other autumns. Bank loans aren't up as much as usual.

Even buying - on - the - cuff isn't growing at its old rate, and payments are getting a little hard to collect.

The silver linings that businessmen are now spotting in those clouds they found so disturbing a cohple of months back are of several types: A new look at profit prospects; hopes of tax relief; belief that prices won't slip much; the apparent change in government policies.

For months many businessmen feared deflation was to be allowed to take its course, with tumbling prices, plant shutdowns, and a general marking of time by business until consumer demand spurted again. The idea: To stiffen the purchasing power of the dollar and to adjust production rates to consumer demand.

Now it appears Washington is going to move fast to cushion the dip, to forestall it if possible. Easy credit has supplanted tight. Budget balancing becomes a long - term, not a short-term. goal.

Price supports for farm products apparently will keep a firm floor under them. The Bureau of Agricultural Economics predicts today cattle prices will rise. Its parent, the Department of Agriculture, has been under sharp attack from the cattle raisers and from farmers in general.

Hey, Kids! Friday Is 'Bargain Day'

Hey, Kids! Friday afternoon's the time to blast open the piggy bank and have yourselves a real ball.

Friday is bargain day on the thrill rides found in Circleville's Pumpkin Show midway, a special treat offered annually for youngsters 12 years old and younger by Gooding Amusement Co.

However, this year's bargain prices, like many other things, are more expensive than previously.

This year, from the time the midway opens until 6 p. m. youngsters can enjoy all of the rides for 14 cents, tax included. Last year, the "bargain day" offered rides at a dime a throw.

Godfrey Explains Firing Of Pair

NEW YORK (AP)—Arthur Godfrey says he fired Julius LaRosa because he felt he had lost the qualities for which he hired him—"which for lack of a better word I call humility."

He said the release of both LaRosa and band leader Archie Bleyer was the result of a series of incidents that indicated to him they were using the Godfrey shows to promote their outside activities rather than making the programs their first interest.

Hey, Kids! Friday Is 'Bargain Day'

Hey, Kids! Friday afternoon's the time to blast open the piggy bank and have yourselves a real ball.

Friday is bargain day on the thrill rides found in Circleville's Pumpkin Show midway, a special treat offered annually for youngsters 12 years old and younger by Gooding Amusement Co.

However, this year's bargain prices, like many other things, are more expensive than previously.

This year, from the time the midway opens until 6 p. m. youngsters can enjoy all of the rides for 14 cents, tax included. Last year, the "bargain day" offered rides at a dime a throw.

Godfrey Explains Firing Of Pair

NEW YORK (AP)—Arthur Godfrey says he fired Julius LaRosa because he felt he had lost the qualities for which he hired him—"which for lack of a better word I call humility."

He said the release of both LaRosa and band leader Archie Bleyer was the result of a series of incidents that indicated to him they were using the Godfrey shows to promote their outside activities rather than making the programs their first interest.

Heart Disease Falls In Sweden

LOS ANGELES (AP)—A Swedish doctor says heart disease declined sharply in his country during the anxious years of World War II.

A similar decrease in frequency of heart trouble and peptic ulcer was reported in England for the same period, Dr. Harold Eliasch told the 23rd annual Symposium on Heart Disease yesterday.

"We don't know the answer unless during war we are too busy scrambling to save our lives and our freedom to indulge in the luxury of failing health," Eliasch told 700 specialists.

ONE REFUGE GONE

INSOFAR AT LEAST AS government employes are concerned, the Fifth Amendment can no longer—at long last—be used as a shield against testifying before congressional committees investigating charges of disloyalty or misconduct. Hereafter, by direct order of the President, it shall be cause for dismissal if any such employe refuses to testify on the grounds of constitutional privilege against self-incrimination.

The need for such an order has been revealed in steadily growing degree by recent developments in Washington, and especially by the latest evidence uncovered by the McCarthy committee that some of the nation's most closely guarded radar secrets were stolen from the Signal Corps base at Fort Monmouth, N. J., and handed to the Soviet.

The American people are entitled to the assurance that the men and women whose salaries they pay are patriotic Americans with no unsavory past or present to hide. If Communists succeed in attaching themselves to the government payroll, as they did in the past, they can still take refuge in the Fifth Amendment. But if they do so, they will have to get their pay from their real bosses instead of from the American taxpayers.

And if they are caught accepting Moscow money, they should be started toward the electric chair.

DEBT SHARING

CRITICS WILL HAVE A TOUGH time imputing big business favoritism to the Pentagon's decision to slow down payments to major contractors, thus compelling some to seek millions in private financing. The government, its back against the wall with the debt limit virtually reached, hopes thus to squeak by until the end of the calendar year. But manufacturers are not happy about this development.

One estimate from the Pentagon is that aircraft, tank and ship builders, the major groups involved, may find it necessary to drum up as much as $5 billion from banks to make up for the slower remittances. Contractors complain that the cost of servicing the added debt inevitably will affect unit prices, which, however, can be renegotiated.

As $5 billion is quite a chunk of money, more widespread ramifications can be looked for, including tighter and possibly more costly credit.

The question at bedrock is maintenance of the government's credit, which might suffer if the debt limit were exceeded. But transferring part of the load to business as a short term expedient perhaps might have been more palatable if it hadn't come as so great a shock.

George E. Sokolsky's

These Days

What is the advantage to the American people when the impression is being given that every other country behaves properly but only the United States is wicked? If this sort of thing is done by some alien propaganda, it is understandable. In our era, it is still each nation for itself.

In no other country does a large body of citizens indicate a subordination of their own country to another. In the United States, we suffer from pro-British, pro-French, pro-Russian, pro- any-place Americans to whom their own country is always second.

Nowadays, American citizens, and some of them in high places, when they discuss the movements of goods, like to make Americans feel ashamed, particularly those who, like myself, believe that a free market would be more beneficial than all the aid that we have thus far given away for nothing, but the free movement of goods must not be limited to the United States.

The fact is that many of the countries which are most noisome in demanding not only a reduction of the American tariff but a revision of our customs procedures, are themselves engaged in blocking the international movement of goods and have, in some respects, established a blockade against our exports.

The worst method employed is the quota system. In Great Britain, West Germany, France, Japan and other countries, governments have established quotas of imports which destroy the free market.

Except for specified farm products, the United States admits any and all goods, but charges a customs tariff. The United States has no quota for imports.

In Great Britain, it is practically impossible to buy an American-made and assembled automobile, radio or TV set. Other commodities are limited to small, token quantities.

Another impediment to free trade is the licensing of imports. Great Britain, West Germany, France, Brazil and many other countries require licenses for imports. The licensing system is particularly evil because trade is used as a political weapon by the government. The people of these countries have no right to employ their own earnings to purchase whatever they may choose to use.

The United States does not employ a licensing system over imports. It is permissible to make purchases from abroad, provided a tariff is paid and the commodity will not impair the vegetation of our country or the health of our people.

Great Britain and France engage in preferential tariffs; that, is, goods from countries within the British Empire or the Commonwealth are charged a reduced tariff in Great Britain; a similar procedure is followed by France with regard to French colonies. All preferential tariffs are aimed at the reduction of trade with the United States.

The situation, as regards West Germany, is particularly difficult to understand. That country has been, for a prolonged period, aided and supported by the United States. For a time, the United States was supposed to have a dominant voice in the affairs of West Germany.

Symptoms of Smoker's Asthma Caused by Chemical Irritation

By HERMAN N. BUNDESEN, M.D.

THE typical wheeze of the allergic asthma victim is also the typical wheeze of the sufferer of smoker's asthma. But there the similarity ends.

Smoking can cause an asthma of a non-allergic type in certain individuals. However, the attacks of wheezing are not as severe in smoker's asthma as in the usual asthma. An individual, as a rule, can sleep lying down while the true allergic asthmatic patient cannot. The smoker's irritation is usually confined to the upper part of the tubes leading to the lungs, while in other types of asthma, nearly all of the tubes leading to the air sacs of the lungs are involved.

Allergy Signs Absent

The common signs of an allergy are absent in this disease. Typical blood cells, known as eosinophils, which are found increased in the blood of allergic people, are also absent. It has been found that people who react to smoking in this way may also be irritated by odors from paint, burning wood, frying fat, and certain types of smoky dust. It is believed that chemical irritation from the tobacco causes the asthma.

The irritation causes excess mucus to form in the air passages. This produces the wheezing. The person has difficulty inhaling and, on exhaling, a wheeze or whistle-like sound is very prominent. A sore throat is a usual accompaniment of the disease. Attacks of coughing are also frequent.

Symptoms Relieved

The symptoms are usually caused by smoking and are relieved by discontinuing at least the excessive use of tobacco. During a very severe attack, the usual drugs that relieve asthma, such as epinphrine, are of help.

This does not mean that all types of asthma are caused by smoking. In those that are, however, it is well to discontinue this habit. The doctor will decide on the best treatment.

QUESTION AND ANSWER

R. A.: I have heard that X-ray can prove dangerous. Is this true?

Answer: If used in too great an amount, X-ray can prove dangerous. It can cause a blood disease, forms of skin burns, cancer, and other such diseases if used in excess. However, if used under the careful guidance of a physician, there is little danger from its use.

CHAPTER FOURTEEN

THE FIGURE of Dave faded in Nancy's imagination and Phil Stanley, his smart, imported brogues changed into the broad toed shoes of the man in the picture, sat at the table. She closed her eyes. She wasn't in the gallery. She was in the lodge at Oconomowoc lake. She was being held fast in Phil's arms. His lips were on her forehead, her eyes, her throat, crushed against her own lips.

She was beating her hands against his chest. He was conquering her, she was resisting less and less. She wasn't resisting any more. She was just being held powerless in the arms of Phil Stanley—

The clatter of heels on the floor of an adjoining gallery shattered Nancy's dream. She heard voices. Where had she heard those voices before?

She knew. How well she knew.

They were the voices of Sylvia Staunton and Harriet Clayton. Nancy didn't want them to see her, she couldn't bear to be subjected to their snobbery, and yet she remembered that before the party was over at the Empire room they had warmed up a little. Perhaps it was the champagne that did it. Perhaps champagne had a way of revealing that Judy O'Grady and the Colonel's lady really were sisters under the skin. Nevertheless, Nancy felt that Sylvia and Harriet regarded her as a common little pickup that the irrepressible Phil Stanley had been playing around with.

Nancy was caught. She couldn't leave the room without passing through the gallery in which she heard the voices. She heard her name mentioned. The girls' voices carried more than they realized.

Just what Nancy had expected. They were discussing Phil Stanley. Sylvia was saying that Phil certainly had a faculty of breaking the conventions and getting away with it. Harriet answered that "that poor little Kelly person" must have gotten a tremendous thrill being snowbound for thirty-six hours in a lodge with Phil.

She wondered how Phil had behaved himself.

They both laughed.

They changed the subject then, as though any misbehavior on the part of Phil Stanley was a casual amusement and anyone by the name of Nancy Kelly was too impossible to discuss further.

They talked of a coming Country club party and sauntered out, unknowing that "that poor little Kelly person" was standing just around the doorway with a heart bursting with pride both challenged and hurt.

Nancy hurried back to the office, forgetting that she had had no lunch. Her eyes were so blue with anger now that they were almost black. As black as Phil Stanley's.

"I'll show them—the—the snobs—"

All that afternoon Nancy pounded the keys of her typewriter with a fierce determination. In every key was mirrored the faces of Sylvia Staunton and Harriet Clayton.

* * *

That evening in a little Italian restaurant on Third street, Dave Armstrong asked Nancy to marry him. When they were alone in the restaurant Dave, without indicating what was on his mind, reached across the table and covered Nancy's small white hands with his strong brown ones.

"Nancy, I've tried to tell you so many times. You know how I love you. You must know. Will you marry me, Nancy?"

Nancy made a little, involuntary motion to free her hands. Dave grasped them tighter. His very large, muscular hands were not made to hold a teacup with much grace, but they could be graceful, even when covered with grease when he was adjusting some delicate piece of machinery.

Nancy had worked hard all day and during half of it she had burned with anger over the conversation of Sylvia and Harriet in the art gallery. All afternoon she had consoled herself with the thought that some day, some place, she would "show them," but when five o'clock came the flame of her resentment began to cool.

She would show them—but how?

How could Nancy Kelly, a stenographer in a law office, show Sylvia Staunton and Harriet Clayton anything? How, how, how—

Now she was in the plain little restaurant, alone with Dave, his hands covering hers, his eyes searching her eyes, waiting for her answer.

For an instant she was tempted to say yes. Dave was going to get on, she knew it. He had it in him. She could marry and keep her job too, so many girls did that nowdays. She could still help at home. It would be an escape from—from what?

Nancy's tired brain right then didn't know from what. She only knew that her whole being for months had been in revolt at office work when she wanted to be on her own, expressing her talents, whatever they might be.

She chafed at the thought of going through life longing to do something, but being fearful to try. When her mother was a girl she had a lovely singing voice. She had married—that was the end of it.

Dave's hands were pressing hers hard now.

"I'm waiting, Nancy, sweetheart."

That noon Nancy had been lost in contemplation of the painting at the art gallery and had felt that when she loved she would be devastated by love, her lips would burn with desire for the lips of the man she would marry.

"Dave, you're a dear. I like you so very much."

"Then you will marry me?"

"Dave, I don't know. I can't say yes. I won't say no. There's so much I want to do in the world.'

"Do what?"

"Oh, Dave. To win something out of life, to find myself. To slay a dragon, Dave, to—"

"A dragon!"

"Yes, a dragon, with many heads. Fear, landlords, typewriters, Humphrey Charleses, snobbery."

Dave's face was honestly puzzled.

"I'm afraid I don't know what you are talking about."

"And I'm afraid I can't make you understand, Dave. I don't know exactly what I mean myself."

That night Dave declined Nancy's invitation to stop in at the Kelly home. He unlocked the door for Nancy and turned to go. Nancy flung her arms about his neck and kissed him full on the lips.

"You're not angry with me, are you, Dave?"

"No, Nancy. Who could be angry with someone half angel, half imp!"

* * *

The days flew by with dizzy succession for Nancy Kelly. Office—work—home. Home—work—office. Humphrey Charles, as the lawsuit involving the Stanley Construction company progressed, grew more and more irascible.

Nancy turned to the want ads for another job. She had to earn more money. She had no luck.

Phil Stanley had been in and out of the office half a dozen times, and each time Nancy had said no to his invitations. He even wanted her to go to a prize fight. Prize fights seemed to be the latest pasttime for the society girls.

Nancy's refusals didn't discourage Phil. He always came back for more. Often she was on the verge of weakening. She had known the feel of Phil Stanley's lips on her own. She had struggled against his kisses and had called him a beast. She had said she despised him . . . Humphrey Charles' words kept echoing in her ears . . . Mr. Stanley is a gentleman . . . a station of society you could hardly expect to fit into.

Now Phil was at her desk again. He was insisting that she go someplace with him that night. He named half a dozen places, things to do. Nancy said no to all of them.

"I'm sorry, you see you are a gentleman. You travel in a stratum of society I could hardly expect to fit into."

"Nonsense, what do you mean?"

"I was just quoting somebody. Good night, I must go."

"I'm going with you."

He followed her to the street, took her arm. She couldn't make a scene at five o'clock in front of the Mariner Tower. He hustled her across the street into a cocktail bar.

"Two dry martinis."

"Caveman, what's in your head now?"

"You."

Try, Stop Me

Every year a group of Park Avenue hunters flew by helicopter to a lodge in the Maine woods, and the same guide, famed equally for his lore and his crankiness, was there to take care of them. Came a time, however, when the guide deserted them and went shepherding visiting fishermen. "What's the matter, Seth?" asked one hunter. "Didn't we take good care of you?" "'Twasn't that," frowned Seth. "It's jest that I got plumb tired of havin' you fellows shoot at me for a deer. Ain't one man mistook me for a fish yet."

Two shavers were sitting on a fence rail chewing bubble gum when one suddenly announced "I'm five years old. How old are you?" "Dunno," was the answer. "Hmm," mused the first, "do girls bother you?" "Not at all," said the second. The first nodded sagely and said, "You're four."

Because of the atom, the Tri-Cities of the state of Washington — Pasco, Kennewick and Richland—have had a growth of better than 1,000 per cent since 1940.

The decision of the government to build its plutonium plant on the banks of the Columbia River in the midst of those three towns meant spectacular growth. In 1940, Richland was a town of 165 people; today it is a modern community of better than 25,000. The prosperity now evident in the area is dependent on the atom.

But today, control of the atom which brought the boom is choking off and keeping back the one thing which would give the Tri-Cities a stable and permanent economy—irrigation farming.

If water was the only concern of those interested in irrigation farming, the matter now would be pretty well solved. But water is not the problem.

* * *

HIDDEN ACRES—Water is obtainable, but the land is not. A strange statement? Not at all, when it is remembered that some 88,000 acres are still hidden behind the curtain of secrecy drawn around Hanford Works by the Atomic Energy Commission.

This is part of the land taken over by the AEC when construction of the plant was started. It couldn't be expected that a plant, dealing with something which, at that time, was highly mysterious, could be placed on a few acres. However, as events have proved, not all the land taken from the public use was needed.

The Atomic Energy Commission tacitly admitted this in 1952 when it turned 87,000 acres back to the bureau of Reclamation for development. Hub Walters, executive secretary of the Columbia Basin Commission, a state committee formed to foster the growth of the basin, said at the time:

"It will add roughly $6 million a year to the production of farm crops in your area. It will create between $40 and $50 million of trade and commerce in the establishing of farms, the construction of houses and farm buildings and the adding of trucks and equipment to the farms."

This released land came from the very fringes of that controlled by the commission. No land in the control zone—that closest to the atom plant—was released. A few acres of the secondary zone—lying next to the control zone and held by the AEC for reasons of "health and security" — was made available for irrigation.

* * *

WANT LAND—But, in the secondary zone lies the great bone of contention, the problem which has the farmers and irrigation men at sword's point with the Commission. They want all this secondary zone—the 88 million acres—turned back. They claim—and the AEC does not deny it—that this land is not needed for the security of the plant.

Currently, the AEC has shown no indication of giving in to the farmers and irrigation men. Glenn C. Lee, publisher of the Tri-City Herald, asked David F. Shaw, the AEC's manager at Richland, about this land. Shaw admitted there was no normal risk on this secondary land. Lee quoted Shaw as saying there was risk only in the case of an internal disaster or an attack by an aggressor.

In other words, a farmer on this secondary zone would be in danger only if the plant blew up or the Russians bombed it. In the opinion of the farmers and irrigation men, the danger of this happening is about equal to the danger of being run over by a mad bull elephant—it's possible, but highly improbable.

That's where the deadlock stands today. Admittedly, the AEC has the upper hand—at least it will have until pressure is brought to bear. And it is being mounted, slowly, but surely. Already a special committee has been formed to press for the release of more land. The men on this committee are known throughout the state and the Pacific Northwest. They are not political beginners.

These men are carrying the hopes of the Tri-Cities and of the Columbia Basin. If they can shake this land loose from AEC control, they will have hurried the region on its way towards permanent prosperity.

ONE REFUGE GONE

INSOFAR AT LEAST AS government employes are concerned, the Fifth Amendment can no longer—at long last—be used as a shield against testifying before congressional committees investigating charges of disloyalty or misconduct. Hereafter, by direct order of the President, it shall be cause for dismissal if any such employe refuses to testify on the grounds of constitutional privilege against self-incrimination.

The need for such an order has been revealed in steadily growing degree by recent developments in Washington, and especially by the latest evidence uncovered by the McCarthy committee that some of the nation's most closely guarded radar secrets were stolen from the Signal Corps base at Fort Monmouth, N. J., and handed to the Soviet.

The American people are entitled to the assurance that the men and women whose salaries they pay are patriotic Americans with no unsavory past or present to hide. If Communists succeed in attaching themselves to the government payroll, as they did in the past, they can still take refuge in the Fifth Amendment. But if they do so, they will have to get their pay from their real bosses instead of from the American taxpayers.

And if they are caught accepting Moscow money, they should be started toward the electric chair.

DEBT SHARING

CRITICS WILL HAVE A TOUGH time imputing big business favoritism to the Pentagon's decision to slow down payments to major contractors, thus compelling some to seek millions in private financing. The government, its back against the wall with the debt limit virtually reached, hopes thus to squeak by until the end of the calendar year. But manufacturers are not happy about this development.

One estimate from the Pentagon is that aircraft, tank and ship builders, the major groups involved, may find it necessary to drum up as much as $5 billion from banks to make up for the slower remittances. Contractors complain that the cost of servicing the added debt inevitably will affect unit prices, which, however, can be renegotiated.

As $5 billion is quite a chunk of money, more widespread ramifications can be looked for, including tighter and possibly more costly credit.

The question at bedrock is maintenance of the government's credit, which might suffer if the debt limit were exceeded. But transferring part of the load to business as a short term expedient perhaps might have been more palatable if it hadn't come as so great a shock.

These Days

What is the advantage to the American people when the impression is being given that every other country behaves properly but only the United States is wicked? If this sort of thing is done by some alien propaganda, it is understandable. In our era, it is still each nation for itself.

In no other country does a large body of citizens indicate a subordination of their own country to another. In the United States, we suffer from pro-British, pro-French, pro-Russian, pro- any-place Americans to whom their own country is always second.

Nowadays, American citizens, and some of them in high places, when they discuss the movements of goods, like to make Americans feel ashamed, particularly those who, like myself, believe that a free market would be more beneficial than all the aid that we have thus far given away for nothing, but the free movement of goods must not be limited to the United States.

The fact is that many of the countries which are most noisome in demanding not only a reduction of the American tariff but a revision of our customs procedures, are themselves engaged in blocking the international movement of goods and have, in some respects, established a blockade against our exports.

The worst method employed is the quota system. In Great Britain, West Germany, France, Japan and other countries, governments have established quotas of imports which destroy the free market.

Except for specified farm products, the United States admits any and all goods, but charges a customs tariff. The United States has no quota for imports.

In Great Britain, it is practically impossible to buy an American-made and assembled automobile, radio or TV set. Other commodities are limited to small, token quantities.

Another impediment to free trade is the licensing of imports. Great Britain, West Germany, France, Brazil and many other countries require licenses for imports. The licensing system is particularly evil because trade is used as a political weapon by the government. The people of these countries have no right to employ their own earnings to purchase whatever they may choose to use.

The United States does not employ a licensing system over imports. It is permissible to make purchases from abroad, provided a tariff is paid and the commodity will not impair the vegetation of our country or the health of our people.

Great Britain and France engage in preferential tariffs; that, is, goods from countries within the British Empire or the Commonwealth are charged a reduced tariff in Great Britain; a similar procedure is followed by France with regard to French colonies. All preferential tariffs are aimed at the reduction of trade with the United States.

The situation, as regards West Germany, is particularly difficult to understand. That country has been, for a prolonged period, aided and supported by the United States. For a time, the United States was supposed to have a dominant voice in the affairs of West Germany.

Symptoms of Smoker's Asthma Caused by Chemical Irritation

By HERMAN N. BUNDESEN, M.D.

THE typical wheeze of the allergic asthma victim is also the typical wheeze of the sufferer of smoker's asthma. But there the similarity ends.

Smoking can cause an asthma of a non-allergic type in certain individuals. However, the attacks of wheezing are not as severe in smoker's asthma as in the usual asthma. An individual, as a rule, can sleep lying down while the true allergic asthmatic patient cannot. The smoker's irritation is usually confined to the upper part of the tubes leading to the lungs, while in other types of asthma, nearly all of the tubes leading to the air sacs of the lungs are involved.

Allergy Signs Absent

The common signs of an allergy are absent in this disease. Typical blood cells, known as eosinophils, which are found increased in the blood of allergic people, are also absent. It has been found that people who react to smoking in this way may also be irritated by odors from paint, burning wood, frying fat, and certain types of smoky dust. It is believed that chemical irritation from the tobacco causes the asthma.

The irritation causes excess mucus to form in the air passages. This produces the wheezing. The person has difficulty inhaling and, on exhaling, a wheeze or whistle-like sound is very prominent. A sore throat is a usual accompaniment of the disease. Attacks of coughing are also frequent.

Symptoms Relieved

The symptoms are usually caused by smoking and are relieved by discontinuing at least the excessive use of tobacco. During a very severe attack, the usual drugs that relieve asthma, such as epinphrine, are of help.

This does not mean that all types of asthma are caused by smoking. In those that are, however, it is well to discontinue this habit. The doctor will decide on the best treatment.

QUESTION AND ANSWER

R. A.: I have heard that X-ray can prove dangerous. Is this true?

Answer: If used in too great an amount, X-ray can prove dangerous. It can cause a blood disease, forms of skin burns, cancer, and other such diseases if used in excess. However, if used under the careful guidance of a physician, there is little danger from its use.

CHAPTER FOURTEEN

THE FIGURE of Dave faded in Nancy's imagination and Phil Stanley, his smart, imported brogues changed into the broad toed shoes of the man in the picture, sat at the table. She closed her eyes. She wasn't in the gallery. She was in the lodge at Oconomowoc lake. She was being held fast in Phil's arms. His lips were on her forehead, her eyes, her throat, crushed against her own lips.

She was beating her hands against his chest. He was conquering her, she was resisting less and less. She wasn't resisting any more. She was just being held powerless in the arms of Phil Stanley—

The clatter of heels on the floor of an adjoining gallery shattered Nancy's dream. She heard voices. Where had she heard those voices before?

She knew. How well she knew.

They were the voices of Sylvia Staunton and Harriet Clayton. Nancy didn't want them to see her, she couldn't bear to be subjected to their snobbery, and yet she remembered that before the party was over at the Empire room they had warmed up a little. Perhaps it was the champagne that did it. Perhaps champagne had a way of revealing that Judy O'Grady and the Colonel's lady really were sisters under the skin. Nevertheless, Nancy felt that Sylvia and Harriet regarded her as a common little pickup that the irrepressible Phil Stanley had been playing around with.

Nancy was caught. She couldn't leave the room without passing through the gallery in which she heard the voices. She heard her name mentioned. The girls' voices carried more than they realized.

Just what Nancy had expected. They were discussing Phil Stanley. Sylvia was saying that Phil certainly had a faculty of breaking the conventions and getting away with it. Harriet answered that "that poor little Kelly person" must have gotten a tremendous thrill being snowbound for thirty-six hours in a lodge with Phil.

She wondered how Phil had behaved himself.

They both laughed.

They changed the subject then, as though any misbehavior on the part of Phil Stanley was a casual amusement and anyone by the name of Nancy Kelly was too impossible to discuss further.

They talked of a coming Country club party and sauntered out, unknowing that "that poor little Kelly person" was standing just around the doorway with a heart bursting with pride both challenged and hurt.

Nancy hurried back to the office, forgetting that she had had no lunch. Her eyes were so blue with anger now that they were almost black. As black as Phil Stanley's.

"I'll show them—the—the snobs—"

All that afternoon Nancy pounded the keys of her typewriter with a fierce determination. In every key was mirrored the faces of Sylvia Staunton and Harriet Clayton.

* * *

That evening in a little Italian restaurant on Third street, Dave Armstrong asked Nancy to marry him. When they were alone in the restaurant Dave, without indicating what was on his mind, reached across the table and covered Nancy's small white hands with his strong brown ones.

"Nancy, I've tried to tell you so many times. You know how I love you. You must know. Will you marry me, Nancy?"

Nancy made a little, involuntary motion to free her hands. Dave grasped them tighter. His very large, muscular hands were not made to hold a teacup with much grace, but they could be graceful, even when covered with grease when he was adjusting some delicate piece of machinery.

Nancy had worked hard all day and during half of it she had burned with anger over the conversation of Sylvia and Harriet in the art gallery. All afternoon she had consoled herself with the thought that some day, some place, she would "show them," but when five o'clock came the flame of her resentment began to cool.

She would show them—but how?

How could Nancy Kelly, a stenographer in a law office, show Sylvia Staunton and Harriet Clayton anything? How, how, how—

Now she was in the plain little restaurant, alone with Dave, his hands covering hers, his eyes searching her eyes, waiting for her answer.

For an instant she was tempted to say yes. Dave was going to get on, she knew it. He had it in him. She could marry and keep her job too, so many girls did that nowdays. She could still help at home. It would be an escape from—from what?

Nancy's tired brain right then didn't know from what. She only knew that her whole being for months had been in revolt at office work when she wanted to be on her own, expressing her talents, whatever they might be.

She chafed at the thought of going through life longing to do something, but being fearful to try. When her mother was a girl she had a lovely singing voice. She had married—that was the end of it.

Dave's hands were pressing hers hard now.

"I'm waiting, Nancy, sweetheart."

That noon Nancy had been lost in contemplation of the painting at the art gallery and had felt that when she loved she would be devastated by love, her lips would burn with desire for the lips of the man she would marry.

"Dave, you're a dear. I like you so very much."

"Then you will marry me?"

"Dave, I don't know. I can't say yes. I won't say no. There's so much I want to do in the world."

"Do what?"

"Oh, Dave. To win something out of life, to find myself. To slay a dragon, Dave, to—"

"A dragon!"

"Yes, a dragon, with many heads. Fear, landlords, typewriters, Humphrey Charleses, snobbery."

Dave's face was honestly puzzled.

"I'm afraid I don't know what you are talking about."

"And I'm afraid I can't make you understand, Dave. I don't know exactly what I mean myself."

That night Dave declined Nancy's invitation to stop in at the Kelly home. He unlocked the door for Nancy and turned to go. Nancy flung her arms about his neck and kissed him full on the lips.

"You're not angry with me, are you, Dave?"

"No, Nancy. Who could be angry with someone half angel, half imp!"

* * *

The days flew by with dizzy succession for Nancy Kelly. Office—work—home. Home—work—office. Humphrey Charles, as the lawsuit involving the Stanley Construction company progressed, grew more and more irascible.

Nancy turned to the want ads for another job. She had to earn more money. She had no luck.

Phil Stanley had been in and out of the office half a dozen times, and each time Nancy had said no to his invitations. He even wanted her to go to a prize fight. Prize fights seemed to be the latest pasttime for the society girls.

Nancy's refusals didn't discourage Phil. He always came back for more. Often she was on the verge of weakening. She had known the feel of Phil Stanley's lips on her own. She had struggled against his kisses and had called him a beast. She had said she despised him . . . Humphrey Charles' words kept echoing in her ears . . . Mr. Stanley is a gentleman . . . a station of society you could hardly expect to fit into.

Now Phil was at her desk again. He was insisting that she go someplace with him that night. He named half a dozen places, things to do. Nancy said no to all of them.

"I'm sorry, you see you are a gentleman. You travel in a stratum of society I could hardly expect to fit into."

"Nonsense, what do you mean?"

"I was just quoting somebody. Good night, I must go."

"I'm going with you."

He followed her to the street, took her arm. She couldn't make a scene at five o'clock in front of the Mariner Tower. He hustled her across the street into a cocktail bar.

"Two dry martinis."

"Caveman, what's in your head now?"

"You."

Winners in the cash award contest were Mrs. Harley Lutz of Kingston Route 1, first prize of $5.00; Mrs. James Rice of 813 Atwater Ave., second prize of $3 and Mrs. Larry Athey of 226 E. Mound St., third prize of $2.

Judges for the daily contests are Miss Sarah Gallaher of the Ohio Fuel Gas Co. in Chillicothe; Mrs. O. E. Harper, retired home economics teacher of Good Hope; and Mrs. Dick Tootle of Circleville Route 2, a member of the newly-organized Pickaway County Health Council. A completely different set of judges has been secured to choose the grand champion pie in Saturday afternoon contest.

A total of 38 mouth-watering pies awaited the decision of the judges Wednesday noon in Trinity Lutheran church parish house as the "Bake-a-Pumpkin-Pie" contest got underway ahead of the official opening of the 47th annual Pumpkin Show. Although this total is less than last years record of 50 entries on opening day, the quality of the products on display gave promise of an exciting contest with a close decision.

Mrs. Robert Moyer of 538 E. Franklin St. and Mrs. Leo Morgan of 407 E. Franklin St., co-chairmen of a committee of Child Culture League members in charge of the contest, expressed the hope that housewives were aware of the fact that two separate divisions of the contest are being judged.

One group of pies, made with a combination of Mozart or Country Colonel pumpkin and Betty Crocker Pie crust mix or the stir 'n roll method using Gold Medal Flour and Wesson Oil is in competition for merchandise prizes each day.

The other category includes pies made from any ingredients. These pies are eligible for cash prizes given by Pumpkin Show Inc.

The eight first prize winners of the joint daily contests will compete for the grand championship title on Saturday afternoon. Winner of this contest will be awarded a Maytag automatic washer and will receive a championship plaque from last year's winner, Mrs. Everett Peters of Ashville Route 1.

World Today

WASHINGTON (AP) — Secretary of the Treasury Humphrey made a 3,000-word speech about the national economy last Tuesday in San Francisco. But he danced very gingerly around one of the most important questions facing the Eisenhower administration in 1954: will it be able to balance the budget next year?

Yesterday Humphrey's deputy, W. Randolph Burgess, was asked the question point-blank after a talk with representatives of business publications. Burgess replied that he could not say because "this goes back to what is done in the Defense Department."

In the next couple of months President Eisenhower faces decisions which, in the long run, may be as critical as any he has made.

Two of the most important concern government spending, which involves balancing the budget or trying to, and national defense. For weeks government bureaus and departments have been at work on the budget which Eisenhower will offer Congress next January.

The items which go into the budget must be checked over by department heads and the bureau concerned, reduced where possible by the Budget Bureau under director Joseph M. Dodge, finally approved by Eisenhower, and then printed in volumes as big as a metropolitan telephone directory. This work won't be finished before the end of 1953.

If it were not for the huge sums needed in the defense program, the Eisenhower administration would have little trouble next year balancing the budget. Defense spending is far and away the biggest item in the budget, so whether Eisenhower balances it or no depends mostly on how much defense spending can be cut in the fiscal year starting next July 1.

Humphrey on Tuesday and Secretary of Defense Wilson on Monday talked in a way that indicated the administration is thinking about defense and defense spending in terms like this:

Because of atomic and hydrogen development, and the new kinds of weapons resulting from it, new thinking is necessary about new kinds of defense, which may mean less reliance on foot soldiers and ground weapons like tanks, and more on planes and perhaps guided missiles which can defend this country and Western Europe or retaliate quickly against any attacker.

It is possible that out of such a changing concept the administration might be able, or think it is able, to provide more defense for less money. Cutting down on spending for security would bring a balanced budget closer.

It is at this point that Eisenhower carries his enormous responsible—not only for the national economy, but also for the future welfare of the United States and the whole Western world. If he makes a wrong decision in preparing the budget this year, the result could be military disaster in a future year.

In addition to the wisdom needed, Eisenhower is confronted by a very practical political consideration: the Republicans, who talked during the 1952 presidential campaign of balancing the budget, face their first test with the voters since then in November 1954. Whether or not the Eisenhower administration can balance the budget next year will be a major issue in the 1954 congressional elections.

Eisenhower is confronted with still another problem: in their desire to balance the budget, will the Republicans try to raise taxes next year in some form or other?

It would be politically dangerous in an election year. In his San Francisco speech Humphrey danced around that question too, and yesterday Burgess declined to disclose anything about the administration's tax program.

Senator Expects Change In Soviet

CARLSBAD, N. M. (AP)—Sen. Anderson (D-NM) says there are "some influences now at work in Russia" that might make the Russians more amenable to agreement for international control of atomic weapons. He did not elaborate on these "influences."

Anderson is a member of the Joint Congressional Committee on Atomic Energy.

"We must not let these few years slip by when we may have a slight superiority over Russia without trying to gain an understanding," he told the Carlsbad Rotary Club yesterday.

Ohio Ag Chief Urges Butter, Not Bombs, Be Sent To Allies

COLUMBUS (AP)—Ohio's agriculture director told the House Agriculture Committee Tuesday that butter would sound better than bombs to the hungry people of the world.

The director, H. S. Foust, presented his views on pressing farm questions as the committee met in the State Office Bldg. to get personal views of Ohio farmers.

The committee, which is ending a tour of Midwestern farm states, asked Foust for his views:

Ohio has about 200,000 farmers and regularly ranks among the top 10 agriculture states in the nation. About 20 million of Ohio's acres are devoted to farming.

Foust said in answer to the committee's question on whether the foreign trade program should be changed:

"Wouldn't butter sound better than bombs to the hungry people of the world? Would it not also help American agriculture, too? Does it make sense to give a hungry man a gun ostensibly to help protect us and not give him food, too?"

He suggested that "on the basis of our Christian creeds and propaganda programs that our defensive alliances could be greatly enhanced by the use of our excessive food stocks, plus military aid.

"The effect of the decline in the volume of exports of agricultural products is or should be obvious to most of our Ohio farmers by the fact of lower prices and production allotments.

"If farmers are to continue all out production, then similar all out marketing efforts must follow, because our government cannot and should not continue to store farm commodities in excess of a safe supply for the protection of the American people in a national emergency."

Foust said foreign markets offer the greatest chance of increased consumption, and added:

"In lieu of food giveaway programs there surely must be some other trade arrangements about which we individual farmers know little, but which can be used or at least tried."

Record Poultry Show Greeting Visitors Here

Visitors to Circleville's 1953 Pumpkin Show are getting a real treat at the record-breaking poultry exhibit, located on S. Court St. across from Circleville Postoffice.

Otto Guenther, director of the poultry show, has packed more than 300 regular entries into the large display tent, while making room down the center for special entries in the new feature, the egg-laying contest.

Size of this year's show caused Director Guenther to run for help Wednesday morning when the chickens, ducks, geese, rabbits and turkeys began piling up without cage space. The problem was solved by borrowing pens from Steele's Produce to take care of the record number of entries.

Although the regular entries make for a huge show, the most popular from an exhibitor standpoint is the egg-laying contest, where 24 hens will be straining daily to bring home the bacon for their owners.

* * *

EACH ENTRY in the egg-laying contest consists of two hens and each pen is marked with a daily egg-laying record tag. The pair which produces the most eggs by the stroke of noon Saturday will net the owner $15, while the next-best pair will earn $10.

Guenther said several of the entries have made good starts toward the final top prize by depositin eggs in their cages.

Judging of the huge show was to have been conducted Thursday by Joe Harner, registered poultry judge. Last year's show, with only about 150 entries, required all day to judge and pick winners.

Cop Afraid He Scalped Woman

MIAMI, Fla. (AP)—Detective C. C. Papy thought for a minute yesterday he had scalped a prisoner.

He and Detective R. J. Myers were taking two women to jail when they began to fight. Papy grabbed one of the women by the hair.

He was surprised to find himself clutching a wig.

County Sheriff Exhibit Popular

One of the most popular of all the free exhibits in the 1953 Circleville show is the gory display of photographs showing activities of the Pickaway County Sheriff's department during the last year.

The Sheriff's exhibit, stationed in a tent in front of Pickaway County Courthouse, accommodated a steady stream of visitors during Wednesday's opening day program.

Indeed, those who visited were treated to something out of the ordinary in the way of exhibits—viewing bloody, mutilated corpses which were victims of tragedy on the county's highways or victims of their own hands.

The exhibit is a documentary account by photographs of the scenes of violence which have been investigated by the Sheriff's office, all but a very few of the incidents shown taking place this year.

Dial Telephones Due For Ashville

Ashville's exchange of the Ohio Consolidated Telephone Co. is expected to be completely automatic by the first of the year.

Ed Jury, manager of the Ohio Consolidated branch here, said dial conversion units now are being placed in the 900 business and residential telephones of the exchange.

Jury added the installation of the conversion units should be completed in late December. The old telephone office in Ashville will be vacated and its automatic equipment will be housed in a new building in the village.

There will be no operators on duty in the Ashville, station, however, and personal calls—such as long distance—will be routed through the Circleville branch office.

Actually, Ashville is the first of Ohio Consolidated's exchanges to undergo the conversion to dial. Plans have been made, however, to have other branches converted to automatic service in the future.

WASHINGTON (AP) — Secretary of the Treasury Humphrey made a 3,000-word speech about the national economy last Tuesday in San Francisco. But he danced very gingerly around one of the most important questions facing the Eisenhower administration in 1954: will it be able to balance the budget next year?

Yesterday Humphrey's deputy, W. Randolph Burgess, was asked the question point-blank after a talk with representatives of business publications. Burgess replied that he could not say because "this goes back to what is done in the Defense Department."

In the next couple of months President Eisenhower faces decisions which, in the long run, may be as critical as any he has made.

Two of the most important concern government spending, which involves balancing the budget or trying to, and national defense. For weeks government bureaus and departments have been at work on the budget which Eisenhower will offer Congress next January.

The items which go into the budget must be checked over by department heads and the bureau concerned, reduced where possible by the Budget Bureau under director Joseph M. Dodge, finally approved by Eisenhower, and then printed in volumes as big as a metropolitan telephone directory. This work won't be finished before the end of 1953.

If it were not for the huge sums needed in the defense program, the Eisenhower administration would have little trouble next year balancing the budget. Defense spending is far and away the biggest item in the budget, so whether Eisenhower balances it or no depends mostly on how much defense spending can be cut in the fiscal year starting next July 1.

Humphrey on Tuesday and Secretary of Defense Wilson on Monday talked in a way that indicated the administration is thinking about defense and defense spending in terms like this:

Because of atomic and hydrogen development, and the new kinds of weapons resulting from it, new thinking is necessary about new kinds of defense, which may mean less reliance on foot soldiers and ground weapons like tanks, and more on planes and perhaps guided missiles which can defend this country and Western Europe or retaliate quickly against any attacker.

It is possible that out of such a changing concept the administration might be able, or think it is able, to provide more defense for less money. Cutting down on spending for security would bring a balanced budget closer.

It is at this point that Eisenhower carries his enormous responsible—not only for the national economy, but also for the future welfare of the United States and the whole Western world. If he makes a wrong decision in preparing the budget this year, the result could be military disaster in a future year.

In addition to the wisdom needed, Eisenhower is confronted by a very practical political consideration: the Republicans, who talked during the 1952 presidential campaign of balancing the budget, face their first test with the voters since then in November 1954. Whether or not the Eisenhower administration can balance the budget next year will be a major issue in the 1954 congressional elections.

Eisenhower is confronted with still another problem: in their desire to balance the budget, will the Republicans try to raise taxes next year in some form or other?

It would be politically dangerous in an election year. In his San Francisco speech Humphrey danced around that question too, and yesterday Burgess declined to disclose anything about the administration's tax program.

Senator Expects Change In Soviet

CARLSBAD, N. M. (AP)—Sen. Anderson (D-NM) says there are "some influences now at work in Russia" that might make the Russians more amenable to agreement for international control of atomic weapons. He did not elaborate on these "influences."

Anderson is a member of the Joint Congressional Committee on Atomic Energy.

"We must not let these few years slip by when we may have a slight superiority over Russia without trying to gain an understanding," he told the Carlsbad Rotary Club yesterday.

Ohio Ag Chief Urges Butter, Not Bombs, Be Sent To Allies

COLUMBUS (AP)—Ohio's agriculture director told the House Agriculture Committee Tuesday that butter would sound better than bombs to the hungry people of the world.

The director, H. S. Foust, presented his views on pressing farm questions as the committee met in the State Office Bldg. to get personal views of Ohio farmers.

2 City Women Claim Top Honors With Cakes In Baked Goods Show

Two Circleville women were among the first to claim top awards Wednesday as the curtain went up on the 47th annual Pumpkin Show.

They are Mrs. Lee Smith of 932 S. Washington St., baker of this year's grand champion cake; and Miss Adalaide Wertman of E. Franklin St., baker of this year's champion cake.

Mrs. Willison Leist, chairman of the baked goods department in Circleville Armory, said the victory by Mrs. Smith might have been expected to take the top honor since Mrs. Smith has several youngsters to cook for; but the committee was astounded by the victory of Miss Wertman, who was graduated only last year by Circleville High School.

Mrs. Smith won this year's grand champion cake award with a white layer cake—a delicacy she spent most of Tuesday night concocting.

* * *

MISS WERTMAN'S championship award was made on a pumpkin cake—"small, but with a wonderful flavor." The grand championship cake received a premium award of $10, while Miss Wertman's pumpkin cake brought her an award of $5.

Meanwhile, judging is to continue Thursday in this year's baked goods departments, with the four judges to view candies and canned goods.

Mrs. Leist pointed out that all of the cakes on exhibit in the department will be auctioned off Saturday afternoon by her husband, "Colonel" Willison H. Leist. The auction program will begin in the Armory at about 1:30 p. m. Saturday, and proceeds will go to the owners of the cakes.

Candy and canned goods also will be disposed of Saturday afternoon, the candy donated to Pickaway County Children's Home and the canned goods returned to the owners.

A complete report of this year's homemaking department is to be made Friday.

PUMPKIN PALAVER

front shirt, may be this city's number one citizen, but that doesn't cut any ice with the stalwart watchmen stationed around the city to keep the streets free from traffic. The Mayor approached a watchman at one of the barricaded entrances into downtown Circleville Wednesday, identified himself and started to drive through. He finally was permitted to pass—but not until he gave up the mayor routine and said he worked at one of the downtown filling stations. Then he got through.

Circleville's crackerjack American Legion drum and bugle corps is calling attention to the Bellefontaine drum corps which will appear here Thursday night. The Bellefontaine outfit, Ohio championsip Legion corps tis year, will be wearing dazzling uniforms. The local drum corps is seeking to establish a fund to buy sparkling uniforms so that it may rate higher in next year's competition. The Circleville post won third place in Ohio this year.

When the radio-controlled spacemobile displayed by the Air Force happened to bang into the operator's stand Wednesday night, a pack of gleeful youngsters shouted: "Reckless driver! Reckless driver!"

Every time the other classy bands come from far and near, the home folks are reminded again of the exceptional high quality of Circleville's Community Band, High School band and the Legion drum and bugle corps. Drum Major Delores Elsea of the corps and Drum Major Phyllis Dresbach of the high school band stand out all the more when there's chance for comparison with the visitors.

An awful lot of people had an awfully interesting time Wednesday night at the Miss Pumpkin Show judging, but nobody had a bigger night out of it than a tiny blonde wearing a light blue coat and perched on her papa's shoulders.

Jim Shea, wearing a beard and a bowler derby and reading off a list while waiting for the official opening of the Pumpkin Show, looked like a race tout styled for 1808.

The hot sun made brows glisten for Msgr. George Mason and Harry Simmons while they waited for the chimes to finish prior to the formal ceremony. Singer Jeannine Bell, however, managed to look as comfortable and fresh as her big corsage. And the Mayor, who wandered leisurely from his prepared text in his words of welcome, stood out as a bit the Lincoln's era framed by a pair of lavender lapels.

A man stood within a few feet of the American flag and in front of the snappy-appearing Amanda High School band while they were playing the national anthem—and kept his hat on.

Jim McCook, head man here for Du Pont until the big plant is through its construction stage, said he expected a big show—"but this one surprises me." Larry Best, Pickaway County farm agent, was trying without too much success to get through the mid-afternoon crowd at the big corner. "Going? Gee, I'm not sure," he grinned. "And as a matter of fact I don't care so much, either."

County School Superintendent George McDowell and Mrs. McDowell were taking in the sights in methodical fashion, down one side of the street and up the other.

Louis Grace, Norfolk and Western agent here, gets a big kick out of watching the kids play tag with the Air Force's radio-controlled "scooter from Mars." The man at the control box, off to one side, can make it chase anyone on the premises.

Members of the Jackson Township High School band staged an impromptu jam session early Wednesday night on the steps of the courthouse. Featured was a wild imitation of those familiar few bars from "Dragnet." Dig those crazy drums!

Pumpkin Shows may come and go, but a little boy's wide-eyed enthusiasm for railroad trains — no matter the size—probably will go on forever. One youngster went down on his hands and knees on the sidewalk to get a close look at an electric train that whirled around in the window of a Court St. store. And on all sides of him, the show roared and sparkled.

A broadcaster was needed at the information booth about 5 p. m. Wednesday. Police wanted to have a motorist take his car out of the spot reserved for the Air Force exhibit. They finally had to get the wrecker.

Stoutsville Beauty Named Queen Of Show

Mrs. Eugene Barthelmas and Mrs. Clarence Linn.

Present with last year's winner when "Queen Wilma" turned over her crown to Miss Valentine were the two attendants named in 1952—Pat Jones as "Miss Deercreek" and Mary Sue Russell as "Miss Stoutsville."

Mrs. Davis, recalling last year's prolonged contest on a chilly night, felt a measure of relief Wednesday night while waiting for her successor to be named. "I'm kind of glad it's over," she laughed. Her attendants joined in to say they're "never going to forget that night last year."

"Queen Ruth Ann" and her court will participate in all the remaining parades of the 1953 Pumpkin Show.

* * *

THE 15 contestants for this year's event were selected by district high schools. They assembled at the Main-and-Scioto platform shortly after the glittering beauty parade, in which each of the girls rode on the fender of an automobile.

After each of the girls was introduced and walked before the judges, the girls removed their school identification banners and walked again in review. The judges then eliminated all but the final three winners and the following:

"Miss New Holland," Linda Eckle; "Miss Saltcreek," Betty Hanes; "Miss Jackson," Nancy Neff; "Miss Darby," Patricia Mouser; and "Miss Scioto," Ruie Adams.

Miss Darby and Miss Scioto went into the finals with the eventual winners before the judges announced their final selections.

The crowd that watched the judging appeared even greater than the jam that braved chill winds until "Queen Wilma" and her court were picked last Fall. East on Main St. from the platform, a sea of faces seemed to reach for nearly a half-block, while large crowds also extended back into the darkness north and south on Scioto St.

The beauty parade was a brilliant line of bands and floats, with the competing girls riding past on their cars at intervals. All of the contestants drew special outbursts of cheers from groups of friends and relatives.

Baby Shot Before Birth Doing OK

WINCHESTER, Ky. (AP)—The life of Michael Goodwin McGlothen has been like that of any other 2-month-old boy, with one exception. He was shot before he was born.

On Sept. 8, three weeks before the baby's birth was expected, a .22-calibre revolver held by father Walter McGlothen's uncle discharged accidentally, and a bullet pierced the expectant mother's abdomen. She was rushed to a hospital for delivery of the baby by a Caesarian section. The bullet had lodged near the baby's brain. Surgeons removed it, said neither the baby nor his mother would suffer any harmful effects.

Oldaker Purchases 2 New Guernseys

Mr. and Mrs. Howard Oldaker and daghter, Louise, of near Circleville, attended the eleventh Ohio Guernsey classic sale held last Friday in Ashland.

There were 42 head of Guernseys sold and the average was $493.57 per head. Oldaker bought a two-year-old cow, McDonald Farms S. Ruthie.

On Saturday, the Oldakers attended the Franchester Guernsey sale at West Salem and purchased a five-year-old cow, Fuller Farms Golden Nada. The two Guernseys will be added to the Guernsey herd on the Oldaker farm, about four miles north of Circleville.

Something really Special -in power, room, ride, price

WE picture here a car that keeps our order book pages turning quicker than quick.

It is the 1953 Buick SPECIAL 4-Door Sedan—the bargain value that doesn't stay long on our showroom floor.

For this is the best-selling Buick in the land—snapped up by eager buyers who know something really special when they see it.

For your information, we present some SPECIAL facts.

It has a Fireball 8 Engine with the highest power and compression ratio ever placed in a Buick SPECIAL—plus, if you wish, the instant getaway response and utter smoothness of Twin-Turbine Dynaflow.*

It has easy-sitting-room for six adults—as much room as you'll find in cars costing hundreds of dollars more.

It has a ride unique among automobiles. The Buick Million Dollar Ride. The soft and steady and ever-level ride that comes of coil springs on all four wheels—a full-length torque-tube drive—a massive X-braced frame—a solid and substantial roadweight poised with meticulous balance on broadly spaced wheels.

But what makes the Buick SPECIAL so extra special is the low delivered price it carries.

It is a price just an easy step above the so-called "low-price three"—and a price that gives you more room and power and ride-comfort for your money than you get in any other car, except another Buick.

Wouldn't you like to see, sit in and drive one of these great-powered Buicks—look into its beauty, its luxury, its handling ease—and judge for yourself how small a price tag it wears?

Phone us this week, or drop in. We'll be happy to arrange a demonstration.

2 City Women Claim Top Honors With Cakes In Baked Goods Show

Two Circleville women were among the first to claim top awards Wednesday as the curtain went up on the 47th annual Pumpkin Show.

They are Mrs. Lee Smith of 932 S. Washington St., baker of this year's grand champion cake; and Miss Adalaide Wertman of E. Franklin St., baker of this year's champion cake.

Mrs. Willison Leist, chairman of the baked goods department in Circleville Armory, said the victory by Mrs. Smith might have been expected to take the top honor since Mrs. Smith has several youngsters to cook for; but the committee was astounded by the victory of Miss Wertman, who was graduated only last year by Circleville High School.

Mrs. Smith won this year's grand champion cake award with a white layer cake—a delicacy she spent most of Tuesday night concocting.

* * *

MISS WERTMAN'S championship award was made on a pumpkin cake—"small, but with a wonderful flavor." The grand championship cake received a premium award of $10, while Miss Wertman's pumpkin cake brought her an award of $5.

Meanwhile, judging is to continue Thursday in this year's baked goods departments, with the four judges to view candies and canned goods.

Mrs. Leist pointed out that all of the cakes on exhibit in the department will be auctioned off Saturday afternoon by her husband, "Colonel" Willison H. Leist. The auction program will begin in the Armory at about 1:30 p. m. Saturday, and proceeds will go to the owners of the cakes.

Candy and canned goods also will be disposed of Saturday afternoon, the candy donated to Pickaway County Children's Home and the canned goods returned to the owners.

A complete report of this year's homemaking department is to be made Friday.

front shirt, may be this city's number one citizen, but that doesn't cut any ice with the stalwart watchmen stationed around the city to keep the streets free from traffic. The Mayor approached a watchman at one of the barricaded entrances into downtown Circleville Wednesday, identified himself and started to drive through. He finally was permitted to pass—but not until he gave up the mayor routine and said he worked at one of the downtown filling stations. Then he got through.

Circleville's crackerjack American Legion drum and bugle corps is calling attention to the Bellefontaine drum corps which will appear here Thursday night. The Bellefontaine outfit, Ohio championsip Legion corps tis year, will be wearing dazzling uniforms. The local drum corps is seeking to establish a fund to buy sparkling uniforms so that it may rate higher in next year's competition. The Circleville post won third place in Ohio this year.

When the radio-controlled spacemobile displayed by the Air Force happened to bang into the operator's stand Wednesday night, a pack of gleeful youngsters shouted: "Reckless driver! Reckless driver!"

Every time the other classy bands come from far and near, the home folks are reminded again of the exceptional high quality of Circleville's Community Band, High School band and the Legion drum and bugle corps. Drum Major Delores Elsea of the corps and Drum Major Phyllis Dresbach of the high school band stand out all the more when there's chance for comparison with the visitors.

An awful lot of people had an awfully interesting time Wednesday night at the Miss Pumpkin Show judging, but nobody had a bigger night out of it than a tiny blonde wearing a light blue coat and perched on her papa's shoulders.

Jim Shea, wearing a beard and a bowler derby and reading off a list while waiting for the official opening of the Pumpkin Show, looked like a race tout styled for 1808.

The hot sun made brows glisten for Msgr. George Mason and Harry Simmons while they waited for the chimes to finish prior to the formal ceremony. Singer Jeannine Bell, however, managed to look as comfortable and fresh as her big corsage. And the Mayor, who wandered leisurely from his prepared text in his words of welcome, stood out as a bit the Lincoln's era framed by a pair of lavender lapels.

A man stood within a few feet of the American flag and in front of the snappy-appearing Amanda High School band while they were playing the national anthem—and kept his hat on.

Jim McCook, head man here for Du Pont until the big plant is through its construction stage, said he expected a big show—"but this one surprises me." Larry Best, Pickaway County farm agent, was trying without too much success to get through the mid-afternoon crowd at the big corner. "Going? Gee, I'm not sure," he grinned. "And as a matter of fact I don't care so much, either."

County School Superintendent George McDowell and Mrs. McDowell were taking in the sights in methodical fashion, down one side of the street and up the other.

Louis Grace, Norfolk and Western agent here, gets a big kick out of watching the kids play tag with the Air Force's radio-controlled "scooter from Mars." The man at the control box, off to one side, can make it chase anyone on the premises.

Members of the Jackson Township High School band staged an impromptu jam session early Wednesday night on the steps of the courthouse. Featured was a wild imitation of those familiar few bars from "Dragnet." Dig those crazy drums!

Pumpkin Shows may come and go, but a little boy's wide-eyed enthusiasm for railroad trains — no matter the size—probably will go on forever. One youngster went down on his hands and knees on the sidewalk to get a close look at an electric train that whirled around in the window of a Court St. store. And on all sides of him, the show roared and sparkled.

A broadcaster was needed at the information booth about 5 p. m. Wednesday. Police wanted to have a motorist take his car out of the spot reserved for the Air Force exhibit. They finally had to get the wrecker.

Happy Is The Day When Backache Goes Away . . . .

Nagging backache, loss of pep and energy, headaches and dizziness may be due to slowdown of kidney function. Doctors say good kidney function is very important to good health. When some everyday condition, such as stress and strain, causes this important function to slow down, many folks suffer nagging backache—feel miserable. Minor bladder irritations due to cold or wrong diet may cause getting up nights or frequent passages.

Don't neglect your kidneys if these conditions bother you. Try Doan's Pills—a mild diuretic. Used successfully by millions for over 50 years. It's amazing how many times Doan's give happy relief from these discomforts—help the 15 miles of kidney tubes and filters flush out waste. Get Doan's Pills today!

Stoutsville Beauty Named Queen Of Show

Mrs. Eugene Barthelmas and Mrs. Clarence Linn.

Present with last year's winner when "Queen Wilma" turned over her crown to Miss Valentine were the two attendants named in 1952—Pat Jones as "Miss Deercreek" and Mary Sue Russell as "Miss Stoutsville."

Mrs. Davis, recalling last year's prolonged contest on a chilly night, felt a measure of relief Wednesday night while waiting for her successor to be named. "I'm kind of glad it's over," she laughed. Her attendants joined in to say they're "never going to forget that night last year."

"Queen Ruth Ann" and her court will participate in all the remaining parades of the 1953 Pumpkin Show.

* * *

THE 15 contestants for this year's event were selected by district high schools. They assembled at the Main-and-Scioto platform shortly after the glittering beauty parade, in which each of the girls rode on the fender of an automobile.

After each of the girls was introduced and walked before the judges, the girls removed their school identification banners and walked again in review. The judges then eliminated all but the final three winners and the following:

"Miss New Holland," Linda Eckle; "Miss Saltcreek," Betty Hanes; "Miss Jackson," Nancy Neff; "Miss Darby," Patricia Mouser; and "Miss Scioto," Ruie Adams.

Miss Darby and Miss Scioto went into the finals with the eventual winners before the judges announced their final selections.

The crowd that watched the judging appeared even greater than the jam that braved chill winds until "Queen Wilma" and her court were picked last Fall. East on Main St. from the platform, a sea of faces seemed to reach for nearly a half-block, while large crowds also extended back into the darkness north and south on Scioto St.

The beauty parade was a brilliant line of bands and floats, with the competing girls riding past on their cars at intervals. All of the contestants drew special outbursts of cheers from groups of friends and relatives.

Tigers Ending Workouts For Tiff Here Friday Against Miamisburg

Circleville High School's Tiger football team will put the finishing touches to its pre-game preparations Thursday evening on the CHS gridiron.

Tiger gridders will be put through run-through paces under the lights as their last practice before tangling here Friday night with powerful Miamisburg warriors.

Both teams in Friday's Pumpkin Show contest will be fighting to make their good records better. Each has scored four victories in five starts to date this season.

Circleville and Miamisburg will be about equal in the weight department, also, Miamisburg with a little heavier line and Circleville with an edge in backfield weight.

* * *

PROBABLE starting lineup for the invaders will be:

Ends — Leonard Fox and Bob Schuitz.

Tackles — Don Pennington and James Belvo.

Guards — Don Zink and Ronald Laughlis.

Center — Herman Myers.

Quarterback — Doug Schmidt.

Halfbacks — Harry Rudy and Jerry Payne.

Fullback — Jim Dickey.

Biggest asset to the invading Miamisburg combine will be its fullback, a 190-pound, 6'1" battering ram. Another large addition to the team is 6'5" Dave Warner, who will be used sparingly at an end post.

In all, Miamisburg Coach Hank Schneider said about 36 players will dress for the encounter, making his team's reserve strength somewhat deeper than that of the Tigers, who usually field only about 29 players.

Circleville's probable starting lineup will be virtually the same as the crew which faced St. Charles last Friday. That probable lineup is:

Ends — Don Skinner and Tom Strawser.

Tackles — Jim Leist and Jim Arledge.

Guards — Dave Bircher and Bill Barthelmas.

Center — Paul Allison.

Quarterback — Ron Bennington.

Halfbacks — Joe Hill and Tom Elsea.

Fullback — George Troutman.

Circleville will wear its all-white "home" uniform while the invaders will present contrast with white pants and blue jersies.

Cricleville's Pumpkin Show contest will get underway with kickoff at 8 p. m. Friday.

High School Grid Leaders Face Battles

COLUMBUS (AP) — Ohio's high school gridders start the stretch drive of the 1953 season this week, and some top tests are on tap for the leading elevens.

Massillon's five-time state champions, still the No. 1 team in the Buckeye realm, expect Mansfield's Tygers to be their finest foe up to date as they tangle tomorrow night on the Stark County grid.

Massillon has won five in a row this season, while Mansfield's lone loss was a 21-20 verdict to Warren's Panthers who hold third place in the state ratings.

Mansfield, despite the loss, has a firm hold on sixth place in the Associated Press poll. Massillon against Mansfield's 124-54.

Warren and ninth-place Cleveland Benedictine, each with five wins, meet tomorrow in Warren in what could be another thriller. Warren has outscored the five foes 153-45, while Benedictine has a 124-12 point record.

The other six in the top 10 are favored to win. Second place Portsmouth entertains Dayton Stivers, whose outstanding effort this season was a 6-6 tie with Dayton Roosevelt, then a member of the top 10. The river city team, riding a nine-game winning streak, has bested the opposition 165-35.

Cincinnati Purcell, fourth placer with five wins and a 134-26 point mark, goes against Louisville (Ky.) Male on the Kentucky gridiron. Dayton Chaminade, in fifth place with five victories and the best scoring mark among the elite with 217-40, is expected to romp over Dayton Kiser.

Middletown's seventh-place Middies, beaten last week by Portsmouth, travel to Lima Central, which has a 4-1 record with only a loss to Massillon marring its record.

Browns Prepping For Giants Test

CLEVELAND (AP) — Wily Coach Paul Brown was anything but overconfident today as he prepared his Cleveland Browns for Sunday's game against the New York Giants.

The Giants, who apparently pick their players with an eye to how they will go against Cleveland, play two "big" games a year, both of them against Cleveland. And for each of those games you can throw past performances out the wind in trying to predict the winner. A tipoff on his designs this year is Coach Steve Owen's assignment of a scout to every one of the Browns' games.

Guesspert Bats .767, Tries To Pick Grid Winners Again

By HAROLD CLAASSEN

NEW YORK (AP) — Last week's special whammy cure didn't work in 12 of 47 cases and so this list of selections is made with the old hat-pin method—just stab and the team you hit is the winner.

The numerous setbacks of last Saturday resulted in a .745 average. That pulled the season's figures down to 158 correct, 48 wrong for an average of .767.

But just as though nothing had happened, here are this week's picks:

Notre Dame over Georgia Tech: Tech's string of 31 games without defeat ends after a terrific struggle. Leon Hardeman's running and Bill Brigman's passing will keep the country's No. 1 college team in a tizzy all afternoon.

Michigan State over Purdue: Michigan State wants to climax its first season in the Big Ten by going to the Rose Bowl.

Southern California over California: The many, many Trojans to keep Cal's Paul Larson bottled up in the big Coast game that should be settled by a touchdown or less.

Kentucky over Villanova: The Blue Grass Wildcats have finally found some help for Steve Meillinger.

Minnesota over Michigan: It doesn't seem possible that Duncan McDonald can pull the Wolverines out of the hole three Saturdays in a row. It will be Michigan's first venture from home.

Navy over Penn: Another step by the Middies in their climb to the title as the East's best.

Baylor over Texas A&M: Baylor has four backs who must be stopped if the Aggies are to win. All of A&M's hopes rest with Don Ellis. That's four against one.

Alabama over Mississippi State: The Crimson Tide slowly gaining power.

Washington over Stanford: Stanford gave its all last week in defeating UCLA.

Skipping over the others in a hurry:

FRIDAY NIGHT

Boston University over Lehigh, Brigham Young over Denver, Maryland over Miami.

SATURDAY

East: Army over Columbia, Holy Cross over Brown, Harvard over Dartmouth, Texas Christian over Penn State, Rutgers over Fordham, Yale over Colgate, Cornell over Princeton.

South: Georgia over North Carolina, Auburn over Tulane, Duke over North Carolina State, Louisiana State over Florida, Furman over Davidson, Wake Forest over Richmond, Tennessee over Louisville, Vanderbilt over Virginia, Virginia Tech over Washington & Lee, West Virginia over VMI, William & Mary over George Washington.

Midwest: Oklahoma A&M over Detroit, Iowa State over Drake, Illinois over Syracuse, Iowa over Indiana, Kansas State over Wichita Marquette over College of Pacific, Missouri over Nebraska, Northwestern over Pittsburgh, Oklahoma over Colorado, Ohio State over Wisconsin.

Southwest: Southern Methodist over Kansas, Houston over Tempe (Ariz.) State, Texas Tech over New Mexico A&M, Mississippi over Arkansas, Texas over Rice.

Far West: Idaho over Oregon State, Utah State over Colorado A&M, Montana over New Mexico Oregon over San Jose, UCLA over Washington State, Utah over Wyoming.

Tigers Ending Workouts For Tiff Here Friday Against Miamisburg

Circleville High School's Tiger football team will put the finishing touches to its pre-game preparations Thursday evening on the CHS gridiron.

Tiger gridders will be put through run-through paces under the lights as their last practice before tangling here Friday night with powerful Miamisburg warriors.

Both teams in Friday's Pumpkin Show contest will be fighting to make their good records better. Each has scored four victories in five starts to date this season.

Circleville and Miamisburg will be about equal in the weight department, also, Miamisburg with a little heavier line and Circleville with an edge in backfield weight.

PROBABLE starting lineup for the invaders will be:

Ends — Leonard Fox and Bob Schultz.
Tackles — Don Pennington and James Belvo.
Guards — Don Zink and Ronald Laughlis.
Center — Herman Myers.
Quarterback — Doug Schmidt.
Halfbacks — Harry Rudy and Jerry Payne.
Fullback — Jim Dickey.

Biggest asset to the invading Miamisburg combine will be its fullback, a 190-pound, 6'1" battering ram. Another large addition to the team is 6'5" Dave Warner, who will be used sparingly at an end post.

In all, Miamisburg Coach Hank Schneider said about 36 players will dress for the encounter, making his team's reserve strength somewhat deeper than that of the Tigers, who usually field only about 29 players.

Circleville's probable starting lineup will be virtually the same as the crew which faced St. Charles last Friday. That probable lineup is:

Ends — Don Skinner and Tom Strawser.
Tackles — Jim Leist and Jim Arledge.
Guards — Dave Bircher and Bill Barthelmas.
Center — Paul Allison.
Quarterback — Ron Bennington.
Halfbacks — Joe Hill and Tom Elsea.
Fullback — George Troutman.

Circleville will wear its all-white "home" uniform while the invaders will present contrast with white pants and blue jerseys.

Circleville's Pumpkin Show contest will get underway with kickoff at 8 p. m. Friday.

High School Grid Leaders Face Battles

COLUMBUS (AP) — Ohio's high school gridders start the stretch drive of the 1953 season this week, and some top tests are on tap for the leading elevens.

Massillon's five-time state champions, still the No. 1 team in the Buckeye realm, expect Mansfield's Tygers to be their finest foe up to date as they tangle tomorrow night on the Stark County grid.

Massillon has won five in a row this season, while Mansfield's lone loss was a 21-20 verdict to Warren's Panthers who hold third place in the state ratings.

Mansfield, despite the loss, has a firm hold on sixth place in the Associated Press poll. Massillon against Mansfield's 124-54.

Warren and ninth-place Cleveland Benedictine, each with five wins, meet tomorrow in Warren in what could be another thriller. Warren has outscored the five foes 153-45, while Benedictine has a 124-12 point record.

The other six in the top 10 are favored to win. Second place Portsmouth entertains Dayton Stivers, whose outstanding effort this season was a 6-6 tie with Dayton Roosevelt, then a member of the top 10. The river city team, riding a nine-game winning streak, has bested the opposition 165-35.

Cincinnati Purcell, fourth placer with five wins and a 134-26 point mark, goes against Louisville (Ky.) Male on the Kentucky gridiron. Dayton Chaminade, in fifth place with five victories and the best scoring mark among the elite with 217-40, is expected to romp over Dayton Kiser.

Middletown's seventh-place Middies, beaten last week by Portsmouth, travel to Lima Central, which has a 4-1 record with only a loss to Massillon marring its record.

Browns Prepping For Giants Test

CLEVELAND (AP) — Wily Coach Paul Brown was anything but overconfident today as he prepared his Cleveland Browns for Sunday's game against the New York Giants.

The Giants, who apparently pick their players with an eye to what will go against Cleveland, play two "big" games a year, both of them against Cleveland. And each of those games you can throw past performances out the window in trying to predict the winner. A tipoff on his designs this year is Coach Steve Owen's assignment of a scout to every one of the Browns' games.

Guesspert Bats .767, Tries To Pick Grid Winners Again

By HAROLD CLAASSEN

NEW YORK (AP) — Last week's special whammy cure didn't work in 12 of 47 cases and so this list of selections is made with the old hat-pin method—just stab and the team you hit is the winner.

The numerous setbacks of last Saturday resulted in a .745 average. That pulled the season's figures down to 158 correct, 48 wrong for an average of .767.

But just as though nothing had happened, here are this week's picks:

Notre Dame over Georgia Tech: Tech's string of 31 games without defeat ends after a terrific struggle. Leon Hardeman's running and Bill Brigman's passing will keep the country's No. 1 college team in a tizzy all afternoon.

Michigan State over Purdue: Michigan State wants to climax its first season in the Big Ten by going to the Rose Bowl.

Southern California over California: The many, many Trojans to keep Cal's Paul Larson bottled up in the big Coast game that should be settled by a touchdown or less.

Kentucky over Villanova: The Blue Grass Wildcats have finally found some help for Steve Meilinger.

Minnesota over Michigan: It doesn't seem possible that Duncan McDonald can pull the Wolverines out of the hole three Saturdays in a row. It will be Michigan's first venture from home.

Navy over Penn: Another step by the Middies in their climb to the title as the East's best.

Baylor over Texas A&M: Baylor has four backs who must be stopped if the Aggies are to win. All of A&M's hopes rest with Don Ellis. That's four against one.

Alabama over Mississippi State: The Crimson Tide slowly gaining power.

Washington over Stanford: Stanford gave its all last week in defeating UCLA.

Skipping over the others in a hurry:

FRIDAY NIGHT

Boston University over Lehigh, Brigham Young over Denver, Maryland over Miami.

SATURDAY

East: Army over Columbia, Holy Cross over Brown, Harvard over Dartmouth, Texas Christian over Penn State, Rutgers over Fordham, Yale over Colgate, Cornell over Princeton.

South: Georgia over North Carolina, Auburn over Tulane, Duke over North Carolina State, Louisiana State over Florida, Furman over Davidson, Wake Forest over Richmond, Tennessee over Louisville, Vanderbilt over Virginia, Virginia Tech over Washington & Lee, West Virginia over VMI, William & Mary over The Citadel.

Midwest: Oklahoma over Kansas, Detroit, Iowa State over Drake, Illinois over Syracuse, Iowa over Indiana, Kansas State over Wichita, Marquette over College of Pacific, Missouri over Nebraska, Northwestern over Pittsburgh, Oklahoma over Colorado, Ohio State over Wisconsin.

Southwest: Southern Methodist over Kansas, Houston over Tempe (Ariz.) State, Texas Tech over New Mexico A&M, Mississippi over Arkansas, Texas over Rice.

Far West: Idaho over Oregon State, Utah State over Colorado A&M, Montana over New Mexico, Oregon over San Jose, UCLA over Washington State, Utah over Wyoming.

Olson Claims Middleweight Boxing Crown

Man From Hawaii Wins Decision From England's Randy Turpin

By GAYLE TALBOT

NEW YORK (AP)—Bobo Olson may not be the greatest middleweight boxing champion the world has seen, but the tattooed man from Hawaii will do until a better one comes along.

He did a competent job on Randy Turpin of England in their 15-round showdown at Madison Square Garden last night before a capacity crowd of 18,869. He did not score a knockout, but only because the man from Leamington Spa had a tremendous lot of heart when he was being badly punished in the closing rounds.

Turpin did show up, despite every doubt that he would, and he made a fight of it for a national television audience. He made no complaint of the unanimous verdict against him by two judges and the referee. He said only between battered lips that he believed he could have done better if he had been free mentally, or words to that effect.

Turpin is separated from his wife and has been named co-respondent in a divorce suit.

Both Tupin and Olson will receive around $55,624 for the fight. Each received 30 per cent of the net gate, $128,415 gross $167,651 and the $60,000 radio-television money.

Exactly what he meant by that is not clear here. It is a matter of record, however, that he has been having some sort of feminine trouble back home. After the fight he told a British writer that he thought he might have knocked Olson out within eight rounds if he had been "right."

This particular observer saw the bout more or less as the officials did. We thought that Olson walloped the pixilated Briton by 10 rounds to 4, with 1 even—in other words, that he won the title going away.

Turpin won the first three rounds and then he took a wacking. His only other round was the eighth, wherein he belted Olson a right on the chops that staggered the new champ. However, Turpin was so tired he was unable to follow up his advantage.

For some obscure reason, Turpin was a sucker at getting caught with his back against the ropes. Every time the former champ staggered into the strands, Olson followed him there and poured in the leather. Afterwards, Randy couldn't explain this weakness himself.

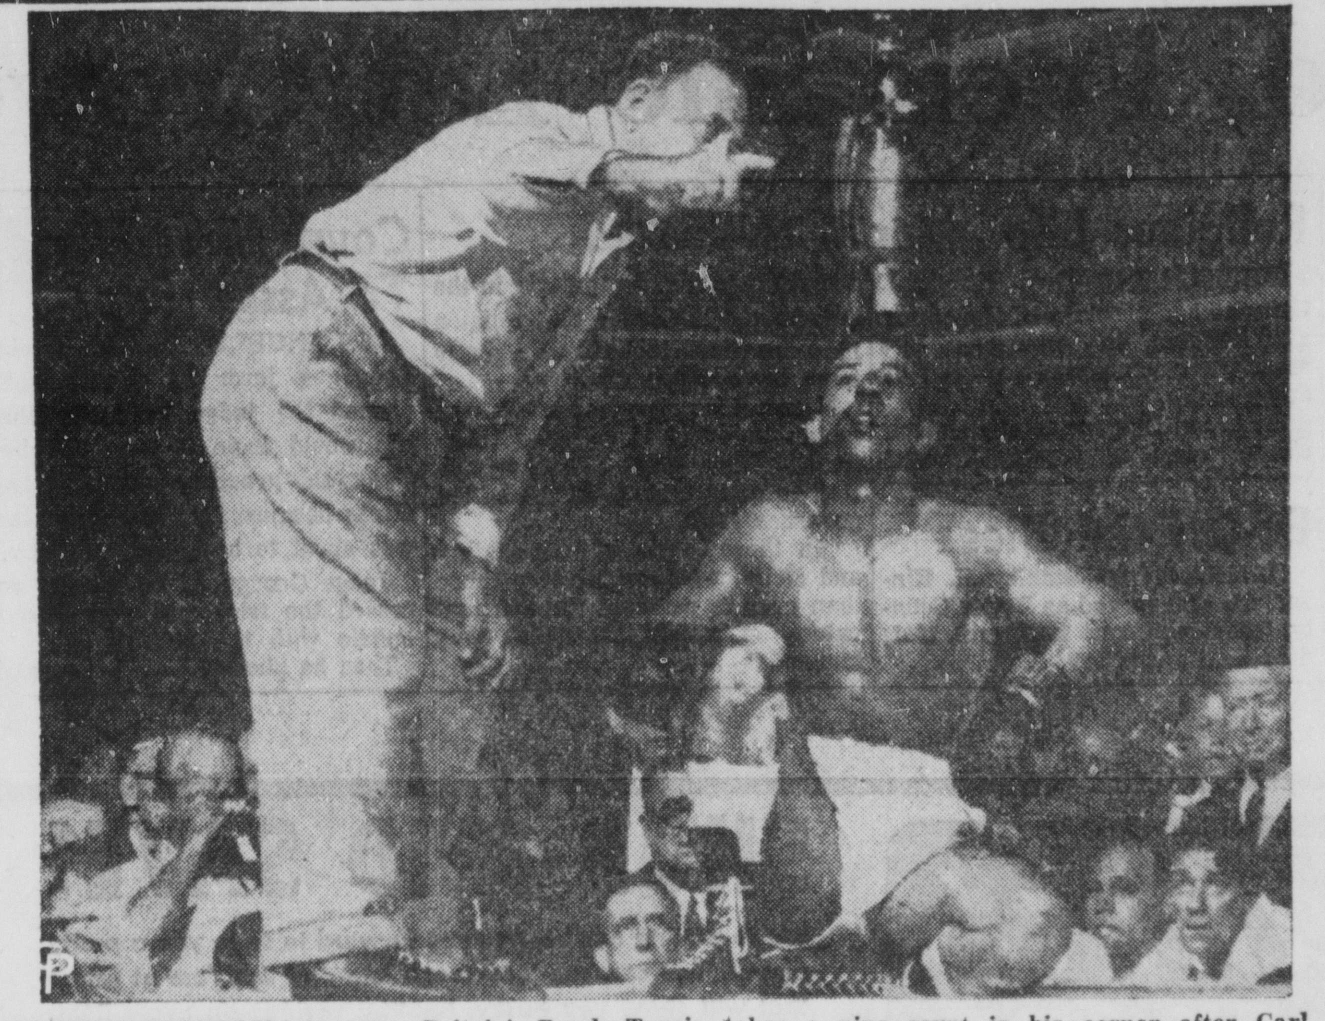
The closest thing to a knockout probably came at the fag end of the ninth round. Olson had caught Turpin good in his own corner and had sent the Briton down with a flurry of solid blows to the head. The bell clanged, however, as Referee Al Berl reached the count of five.

In the following round Turpin went down against almost at the outset, but got up and was ready to go as Berl reached the nine count. He took a severe beating the remainder of the round.

From there on it was strictly a matter of whether Turpin would go the route. Several times Olson had him in trouble, set up for a series of clean shots to the jaw, but each time the Briton called upon his stamina and his ability to slip punches to get away.

The only visible damage to either fighter was a cut which Turpin received under his left eye in the third round and a cut mouth.

Olson weighed 159, Turpin 157.



STARING DAZEDLY into space, Britain's Randy Turpin takes a nine count in his corner after Carl (Bobo) Olson floored him in the 10th round of their middleweight championship bout at Madison Square garden. While a crowd of 18,867 fans watch, referee Al Perl counts off the seconds. Olso, 25-year-old Swedish-American-Portuguese-Hawaiian, won a unanimous decision over Turpin, who had held the title for three months back in 1951.

Sokolsky's These Days

Nevertheless, under the West German licensing system, American goods are kept out of that country if the goods can be found anywhere else. For instance, preference is shown Argentinian, Mexican and Egyptian cotton even when the American taxpayers' money is used to make the purchase. American automobiles, radios, refrigerators and other commodities are never licensed.

The American automobile industry is not particularly concerned about this, as it has invested American capital abroad in factories, assembly plants, and in foreign companies, producing a locally-made commodity by cheaper foreign labor.

The judgment of several companies and personalities in that industry is therefore unacceptable because their bias is that it is not only profitable to manufacture abroad but that it will one day be profitable to import foreign-made American cars into this country. While such threats are today a menace to no one, it could happen that when the price of an American car manufactured in Detroit is too high, our market will absorb the same car made in a European country but which can be sold more cheaply here.

This story of the barriers set up against American goods in foreign markets needs to be thoroughly investigated and the results should be made public. Today many European countries are conducting a propaganda against the American tariff and our customs procedures.

But they do not look at their own quotas, licenses and tariffs, which are even more destructive of a free market.

Grimm Gets National Loop Pilot Crown

NEW YORK (AP) — Milwaukee's Charlie Grimm, who boosted the Braves from seventh to a surprising second-place finish in one year, was voted today National League Manager of the Year.

Grimm, who was runnerup to Casey Stengel yesterday for major league managerial honors, had no trouble outscoring Charlie Dressen, Brooklyn's deposed manager, for the National League's top spot.

The 55-year-old Grimm drew 110 of the 179 votes cast by members of the Baseball Writers Association of America in the annual Associated Press poll. Dressen was second with 66 votes. Eddie Stanky of St. Louis and Rogers Hornsby of Cincinnati, the only other managers to receive recognition, divided the remaining votes. Stanky got two and Hornsby one.

Stengel, the 1953 Manager of the Year, naturally was selected as top man in the American.

Grimm, who succeeded Tommy Holmes as Braves' manager in midseason of 1952, is no novice by any means. He served two separate terms as pilot of the Chicago Cubs, putting in a total of 10 full seasons and parts of three others in the Windy City. He led the Cubs to pennants in 1932, 1935 and 1945.

The jovial Dutchman, however, probably is as proud of his feat in leading the lightly regarded Braves into the runnerup position to the champion Dodgers as he was in each of his three flags. In preseason polls, few experts dared predict a better than fifth-place finish for the Braves.

Illinois Nearing Big Ten Record

CHICAGO (AP) — With sophomore J. C. Caroline setting the individual record pace, Illinois is well on its way to new Big Ten team ground-gaining marks.

In two league games, Caroline has netted 397 yards—averaging 8.8 per play—and an average of 198.5 per game. With this impetus, the Illini have zipped to the top in team attack with an average of 421 yards, 368 of them on the ground. This total offense exceeds the record average of 415 set by Wisconsin in 1952.

Campanella Heads All-Star Team For '53

6 Of 10 Players Named Brand New From Last Selection

NEW YORK (AP)— Roy Campanella, Brooklyn's slugging catcher, heads the 1953 major league All-Star team, one of the strongest squads ever put together.

Campanella, whose 41 home runs and 142 runs batted in are the highest ever reached by a big league catcher, drew all but five of the 179 votes returned by the Baseball Writers' Assn. of America in response to The Associated Press' eighth annual All-Star poll.

The team boasts seven .300 hitters including the two league batting champions, the RBI and slugging kings, a home run leader, 4 players who have hit 30 or more homers and 5 who have pounded home 100 or more runs.

In the pitching department, the team presents Robin Roberts of the Philadelphia Phillies and Warren Spahn of the Milwaukee Braves. Each won 23 games to tie for the most in the majors. Roberts, in beating Washington's Bob Porterfield for righthanded honors, received 132 votes to Porterfield's 30. Spahn easily topped Chicago's billy Pierce for lefthanded honors 116 to 40.

Six of the 10 players are brand new. The four holdovers from the 1952 team include Phil Rizzuto, shortstop; Al Rosen, third base; Stan Musial, left field and Roberts. Musial made the squad for the seventh time, missing only once since the All-Star team was inaugurated in 1946.

Surprisingly, the world champion Yankees placed only one man—Rizzuto—on the team while the Brooklyn Dodgers, whom they defeated in the World Series, placed three men. They are outfielders Duke Snider and Carl Furillo in addition to Campanella.

The St. Louis Cardinals were the only other club to have more than one representative on the National League dominated squad. Red Schoendienst walked off with second base honors with 163 votes, and Musial topped all outfielders with 142 votes. Schoendienst's total was second only to that of Campanella. The National placed seven men to the American's three.

The only close races were for first base and shortstop. Washington's Mickey Vernon, the American League batting king, defeated Brooklyn's Gil Hodges for first base honors, 73 to 57 votes. Rizzuto barely edged out Pee Wee Reese of the Dodgers for the shortstop berth, 60 to 8.

The All-Star team:

First base — Mickey Vernon, Senators (.337)

Second base—Red Schoendienst, Cardinals (.342)

Third base — Al Rosen, Indians (.336)

Shortstop — Phil Rizzuto, Yankees (.271)

Left field — Stan Musial, Cardinals (.337)

Center field—Duke Snider, Dodgers (.344)

Catcher—Roy Campanella, Dodgers (.312)

Pitcher (righthanded(— Robin Roberts, Phillies (23-16)

Pitcher (lefthanded) — Warren Spahn, Braves (23-7)

4 Beulah Park Trainers Shelved

COLUMBUS (AP) — Four trainers whose horses were given medicine before races at Beulah Park Oct. 7 and 8 were suspended yesterday by the state racing commission until April 10.

They are Gale Osborne, Olney, Ill.; Jack Christopherson, Collinsville, Ill.; Charles Wolfe, Columbus and Elmer Albright, Grove City.

Ostrich eggshells were used for water containers as early as 5,000 B. C.

4 Yonkers Drivers Get Suspensions

YONKERS, N. Y. (AP) — Four drivers at Yonkers Raceway have received suspensions by the judges and starter in the most drastic mass punishment in the history of the harness race track.

Will Hylan was given 10 days on the ground for careless driving and cutting in during the seventh race on Tuesday. The judges said Hylan's driving resulted in a six-horse spill.

The judges also set down George Phalen and Cecil Champion for five days each for careless driving.

Starter Steve Phillips also put Fred Gromberg Jr. on the ground for five days for failing to attend a starter's hearing for an infraction at the starting gate.

Hayes Blames Fumbles On Rule

COLUMBUS (AP)—Ohio State football Coach Woody Hayes blames his teams fumble trouble on the one platoon system.

He told a Quarterback Club last night "We just haven't been able to work as much on offense."

"We can only spend 40 minutes an afternoon concentrating on offense. It used to be we'd be able to give all of the players at least an hour and 20 minutes of such work. Not so now; the boys are concentrating on defense."

Sokolsky's

Nevertheless, under the West German licensing system, American goods are kept out of that country if the goods can be found anywhere else. For instance, preference is shown Argentinian, Mexican and Egyptian cotton even when the American taxpayers' money is used to make the purchase. American automobiles, radios, refrigerators and other commodities are never licensed.

The American automobile industry is not particularly concerned about this, as it has invested American capital abroad in factories, assembly plants, and in foreign companies, producing a locally-made commodity by cheaper foreign labor.

The judgment of several companies and personalities in that industry is therefore unacceptable because their bias is that it is not only profitable to manufacture abroad but that it will one day be profitable to import foreign-made American cars into this country. While such threats are today a menace to no one, it could happen that when the price of an American car manufactured in Detroit is too high, our market will absorb the same car made in a European country but which can be sold more cheaply here.

This story of the barriers set up against American goods in foreign markets needs to be thoroughly investigated and the results should be made public. Today many European countries are conducting a propaganda against the American tariff and our customs procedures.

But they do not look at their own quotas, licenses and tariffs, which are even more destructive of a free market.

Grimm Gets National Loop Pilot Crown

NEW YORK (AP) — Milwaukee's Charlie Grimm, who boosted the Braves from seventh to a surprising second-place finish in one year, was voted today National League Manager of the Year.

Grimm, who was runnerup to Casey Stengel yesterday for major league managerial honors, had no trouble outscoring Charlie Dressen, Brooklyn's deposed manager, for the National League's top spot.

The 55-year-old Grimm drew 110 of the 179 votes cast by members of the Baseball Writers Association of America in the annual Associated Press poll. Dressen was second with 66 votes. Eddie Stanky of St. Louis and Rogers Hornsby of Cincinnati, the only other managers to receive recognition, divided the remaining votes. Stanky got two and Hornsby one.

Stengel, the 1953 Manager of the Year, naturally was selected as top man in the American.

Grimm, who succeeded Tommy Holmes as Braves' manager in midseason of 1952, is no novice by any means. He served two separate terms as pilot of the Chicago Cubs, putting in a total of 10 full seasons and parts of three others in the Windy City. He led the Cubs to pennants in 1932, 1935 and 1945.

The jovial Dutchman, however, probably is as proud of his feat in leading the lightly regarded Braves into the runnerup position to the champion Dodgers as he was in each of his three flags. In preseason polls, few experts dared predict a better than fifth-place finish for the Braves.

Illinois Nearing Big Ten Record

CHICAGO (AP) — With sophomore J. C. Caroline setting the individual record pace, Illinois is well on its way to new Big Ten team ground-gaining marks.

In two league games, Caroline has netted 397 yards—averaging 8.8 per play—and an average of 198.5 per game. With this impetus, the Illini have zipped to the top in team attack with an average of 421 yards, 368 of them on the ground. This total offense exceeds the record average of 415 set by Wisconsin in 1952.

Campanella Heads All-Star Team For '53

6 Of 10 Players Named Brand New From Last Selection

NEW YORK (AP)— Roy Campanella, Brooklyn's slugging catcher, heads the 1953 major league All-Star team, one of the strongest squads ever put together.

Campanella, whose 41 home runs and 142 runs batted in are the highest ever reached by a big league catcher, drew all but five of the 179 votes returned by the Baseball Writers' Assn. of America in response to The Associated Press' eighth annual All-Star poll.

The team boasts seven .300 hitters including the two league batting champions, the RBI and slugging kings, a home run leader, 4 players who have hit 30 or more homers and 5 who have pounded home 100 or more runs.

In the pitching department, the team presents Robin Roberts of the Philadelphia Phillies and Warren Spahn of the Milwaukee Braves. Each won 23 games to tie for the most in the majors. Roberts, in beating Washington's Bob Porterfield for righthanded honors, received 132 votes to Porterfield's 30. Spahn easily topped Chicago's billy Pierce for lefthanded honors 116 to 40.

Six of the 10 players are brand new. The four holdovers from the 1952 team include Phil Rizzuto, shortstop; Al Rosen, third base; Stan Musial, left field and Roberts. Musial made the squad for the seventh time, missing only once since the All-Star team was inaugurated in 1946.

Surprisingly, the world champion Yankees placed only one man—Rizzuto—on the team while the Brooklyn Dodgers, whom they defeated in the World Series, placed three men. They are outfielders Duke Snider and Carl Furillo in addition to Campanella.

The St. Louis Cardinals were the only other club to have more than one representative on the National League dominated squad. Red Schoendienst walked off with second base honors with 163 votes, and Musial topped all outfielders with 142 votes. Schoendienst's total was second only to that of Campanella. The National placed seven men to the American's three.

The only close races were for first base and shortstop. Washington's Mickey Vernon, the American League batting king, defeated Brooklyn's Gil Hodges for first base honors, 73 to 57 votes. Rizzuto barely edged out Pee Wee Reese of the Dodgers for the shortstop berth, 60 to 8.

The All-Star team:

First base — Mickey Vernon, Senators (.337)

Second base—Red Schoendienst, Cardinals (.342)

Third base — Al Rosen, Indians (.336)

Shortstop — Phil Rizzuto, Yankees (.271)

Left field — Stan Musial, Cardinals (.337)

Center field—Duke Snider, Dodgers (.344)

Catcher—Roy Campanella, Dodgers (.312)

Pitcher (righthanded(— Robin Roberts, Phillies (23-16)

Pitcher (lefthanded) — Warren Spahn, Braves (23-7)

4 Beulah Park Trainers Shelved

COLUMBUS (AP) — Four trainers whose horses were given medicine before races at Beulah Park Oct. 7 and 8 were suspended yesterday by the state racing commission until April 10.

They are Gale Osborne, Olney, Ill.; Jack Christopherson, Collinsville, Ill.; Charles Wolfe, Columbus and Elmer Albright, Grove City.

Ostrich eggshells were used for water containers as early as 5,000 B. C.

4 Yonkers Drivers Get Suspensions

YONKERS, N. Y. (AP) — Four drivers at Yonkers Raceway have received suspensions by the judges and starter in the most drastic mass punishment in the history of the harness race track.

Will Hylan was given 10 days on the ground for careless driving and cutting in during the seventh race on Tuesday. The judges said Hylan's driving resulted in a six-horse spill.

The judges also set down George Phalen and Cecil Champion for five days each for careless driving.

Starter Steve Phillips also put Fred Gromberg Jr. on the ground for five days for failing to attend a starter's hearing for an infraction at the starting gate.

Hayes Blames Fumbles On Rule

COLUMBUS (AP)—Ohio State football Coach Woody Hayes blames his teams fumble trouble on the one platoon system.

He told a Quarterback Club last night "We just haven't been able to work as much on offense."

"We can only spend 40 minutes an afternoon concentrating on offense. It used to be we'd be able to give all of the players at least an hour and 20 minutes of such work. Not so now; the boys are concentrating on defense."

Little Girl In Purple Hit Hard, Feels She Let Crowd Down

Beauty Queen Ruling Rough For Jill Moats

17-Year Old Hoped To Give City Top Place For 1953

After the judges named the Pumpkin Show queen Wednesday night, a pretty little girl walked away from the crowd and cried. Softly, but down deep, like even the older girls do when something they wanted awfully much just couldn't be—for awhile yet anyway.

Jill Moats, 17-year old Circleville High School junior, who had her heart set on giving the city its second successive beauty queen for the current festival, felt she had fallen short of the mark expected of her. Because, as it must at times even to gorgeous girls, first prize Wednesday night went to another beauty —Ruth Ann Valentine of Stoutsville.

The ruling, for the little girl in royal purple with the No. 5 placard on her back, was rugged—as rulings are always bound to be in a contest of feminine charm.

The dramatic sidelight was noticed by only a few of the great crowd that packed the corner of Main and Scioto streets to watch the gala Beauty Parade and selection of Miss Pumpkin Show of 1953. True to the quality that won her a close second place in the judging, Circleville's entry masked her feelings for several minutes after the queen had been named. And even that waiting was an ordeal.

* * *

MISS CIRCLEVILLE smiled with the other winners, however, while the prizes were awarded and news photographers called for attention and while amateur camera fans were given their chance and well-wishers shouted greetings from the crowd. Then, finally, at the foot of the platform steps where a few close friends and relatives quickly gathered around her, Jill hurried off to where the lights weren't bright, hid her face and cried.

Her very close competition, she felt, wasn't enough for those who had cheered her on. And cheer her on they surely did.

The home town encouragement echoed a thunderous roar all over that section of the business district, rising to a din every time the little girl in royal purple came back before the judges. There was never any doubt as to which hopes rode with No. 5, sister of Circleville's well known model, Pat Moats, who won the Miss Pumpkin Show title in 1349.

For a girl of only 17—with the clamor of the giant throng in her ears—the strain was one that might well have flustered far older and more experienced competitors. But not Jill Moats. She tried, with all the artistry of girlhood, to let the home crowd know how much she appreciated its frantic uproar in her behalf.

And then, when she finally learned the close decision had gone against her, she didn't know what else to do. So she did what beautiful girls of all ages have been doing ever since the world was formed. She cried.

Not out of any selfish regard toward the mythical crown, or because she can't be reconciled to the role of runner-up. The petite brunette will make an attractive attendant for a worthy queen—and for the crowds that wave again when the remaining parades move past, Jill Moats will have won even though she actually lost.

* * *

"YOU HAVE nothing to cry about, Jill," a friend consoled her in the small group near the platform after the contest. And that is all so true—even though nobody expects a 17-year old girl to understand its true meaning. That will take time.

Circleville's latest beauty can go on, if she wishes, to many more contests—some to win and some to be won by others. But eventually she'll understand how, if the home crowd had been given another chance Wednesday night to speak its mind after the queen was named, it too might have said:

"You have nothing to cry about, Jill."

Dem Given Nod

CLEVELAND (AP)—The Cleveland Federation of Labor last night endorsed the mayoral candidacy of State Sen. Anthony J. Celebrezze, a independent Democrat. The 150 AFL leaders gave only one vote to Celebrezze's Republican opponent, William J. McDermott.

COLUMBUS (AP)—The Ohio School Survey Committee, at its organizational meeting yesterday, elected Rep. William Manahan (R-Defiance) chairman, Sen. Charles A. Mosher (R-Oberlin) vice chairman and Sen. Raymond Hildebrand (R-Toledo) secretary.

The group is to make a comprehensive study of Ohio public schools. It was established by the recent legislature.

Religious Life Month Is Booked

COLUMBUS (AP)—Gov. Frank J. Lausche has proclaimed November as "Religion in American Life Month," an observance shared by other states.

He urged Ohioans to attend their chosen house of worship throughout the month and regularly in the year ahead "in order that religion may be strengthened as a daily force in American life."

Noting that November is the month in which Americans traditionally set aside Thanksgiving Day to offer thanks to God, the governor said:

"In these days of uncertainty and strife, we have greater cause than ever to reaffirm the spiritual values on which this nation was founded."

LOS ANGELES (AP)—Mrs. Violet Leduc, a juror in a civil suit, phoned the judge yesterday that she would have to care for her 2-year-old grandson the next two weeks because her daughter-in-law was about to have another baby.

Judge George A. Dockweiler recessed the trial and went into a huddle with the lawyers.

Then he phoned Mrs. Leduc and told her, "We hired a nurse. Trial will resume Monday."
